TRYING FOR A RECORD—Fifth-grade teacher John Gardner is hoping to get into the Guinness Book of World Records with an unusual activity. Adrienne Tucker sits on his lap on a Los Angeles, Calif., street corner and signs a register book as the 1,511th woman to do so. Gardner, who is married, sets up his chair and table in Los Angeles for the activity. He says, "It's been fun."

Ford urges changes in highway funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is proposing major changes in how the nation finances its highway system, including a greater role for the states in making the decisions.

The proposed legislation he will send to Congress today would put a higher priority on completing the Interstate highway system and less priority on local routes, a White House source said.

The 42,500-mile Interstate system is now 85 per cent open to traffic.

The source said Ford also wants to combine about 30 highway grant programs into four broad programs.

Other sources said several major changes have been made in the proposal that was readied for Congress in January but never sent. The sources said the changes now being proposed would be less far-reaching than the January proposals, but still would feature an increased role for the states.

That proposal was delayed to allow the new transportation secretary, William T. Coleman Jr., time to review it and recommend any changes he felt necessary.

The January draft proposal included recommendations for diverting a large proportion of the taxes that now go into the highway trust fund, which finances highway construction. Currently all revenues collected from the four-cent-per-gallon federal tax on gasoline flow into the trust fund.

Under the January proposal, only one cent of the gasoline tax would go into the fund. The rest would have gone to the states or into the general revenue where it could be used for everything but Interstate projects.

The highway legislation is sure to stir controversy in Congress. Supporters of mass transit have tried repeatedly to divert some of the money from the highway trust fund into mass transit projects while others have fought to maintain the current highway funding system.

The highway message kicks off a busy week for the President.

He is expected to make the long-awaited formal announcement of his candidacy for the 1976 presidential race on Tuesday, and on Friday he will begin a three-day campaign-style trip to Illinois and Michigan.

Ford spent the July 4 holiday weekend in the Washington area. He officially launched the new White House swimming pool by going five laps for photographers and reporters. He pronounced the pool "just the right length."

On the business side, Ford met with Indonesian President Suharto. It was another in a series of meetings to give assurances to Asian leaders that the United States plans to keep its commitments in that part of the world despite the withdrawal from Vietnam.

Ford spent Sunday on the golf course and spent a quiet evening with his family.

Public-service jobs improperly filled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new internal report by the Labor Department's chief investigator says 16.5 per cent of federal public-service jobs checked were improperly filled.

The report said the jobs program generally is performing well, but it criticized federal administrators for failing to enforce hiring guidelines and for failing to reclaim up to $17.5 million in allegedly misspent funds.

The object of the criticism, manpower administrator William H. Kolberg, declined repeated requests for an interview last week after The Associated Press obtained a copy of the internal report. "He doesn't want to talk about it," a spokesman said.

The report was written by Frank Yeager, Director of Audit and Investigations for the Labor Department. It is based on a statistical sample of 1,147 public service jobs in 10 localities.

More than 400,000 persons were employed in federal public service jobs in cities all across the country during

13 dead as Israelis hit camps

Mideast fighting flares

By The Associated Press

Israeli air, land and sea forces blasted Palestine refugee camps in southern Lebanon today, and reports from the area said at least 13 persons were killed and scores of refugee huts were destroyed.

The Israeli command said the raids were against suspected guerrilla bases and that Arab gunners retaliated by firing rockets and other shells at two Jewish settlements just south of the Lebanese border. The Israelis listed no casualties.

The attack came less than 72 hours after an Arab terrorist bomb went off on Jerusalem's busy Jaffa Road. Officials said today that another victim of the blast had died, raising to 14 the number of Arabs and Jews killed in the Holy City's worst terrorist incident in a quarter century.

The Israeli command communique made no mention of that attack. But it said the targets of today's raids were guerrilla bases used by Palestinian raiders in various operations against Israel, including an amphibious attack on a Tel Aviv hotel last March.

In other major Middle East developments:

—An obscure terrorist group in Beirut threatened to kill kidnaped U.S. Army Col. Ernest R. Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., by 9 p.m. Wednesday (2 p.m. EDT) unless the United States gives food and building materials to "the toiling masses." The ransom demand was accompanied by photos of Morgan in captivity and three tape recordings in which he said he was being treated well and was impressed by the seriousness of his captors' motives.

—The Israeli cabinet postponed for at least a week any decision on further withdrawal in the Sinai desert in order to seek "elucidations and clarifications" from Washington on various issues in the proposed new agreement with Egypt.

The Israeli command said its "combined forces" struck against "several terrorist bases" in the area of Rashadiyeh and Tyre on the south Lebanese coast. The communique said all Israeli troops returned safely from the raid, but the Palestinian guerrilla command claimed its forces shot down one Israeli jet.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said the four-hour attack began at about 2 a.m. when Israeli planes dropped flares and three gunboats opened fire on the big Rashadiyeh and Burj el Shemali refugee camps outside Tyre, 35 miles south of Beirut on the Lebanese coast.

The communique said authorities

still were taking stock of damage and casualties. Reports from the camps said the dead included a refugee couple and their two small boys killed in a direct rocket hit on their home.

The Lebanese army said 13 villages

in southernmost Lebanon came under intermittent artillery bombardment from midnight to dawn.

CHESTER WHITE SPOTLIGHT—This Chester White was in the "spotlight" Monday during the on-foot market barrow showing at the annual Chester White Summer Spotlight show and sale, being held through Wednesday on the Fayette County Fairgrounds. Nearly 300 champion hogs are expected to be shown and sold during the three-day event.

Chester White spotlight opens

Grand champion honors went to Nebraska and Illinois breeders Monday morning during opening activities of the three-day National Chester White Summer Spotlight being held today through Wednesday on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

The spotlight, appearing in Fayette County, the fourth leading hog county in Ohio, is featuring nearly 300 champion hogs from Chester White herds in approximately 15 different states throughout the midwest this year.

Owner of the grand champion barrow was Al Deets of Kearney, Neb. while the Ken-O-Kaw Farms of Windsor, Ill. was awarded the champion gilt during the on-foot market hog show Monday morning.

Selected as second place winners by breeding animal judge Bill Funderburg of Greenville during the on-foot market show were Larry Butler of Leipsic in the barrow class and the Sunflower Chesters Farm of Manhattan, Kan. in the gilt class judging. Sixteen barrows and seventeen gilts were entered for judging in the on-foot market hog show. The market hogs were then shipped to a packing plant for the carcass judging Monday afternoon.

Lyle R. Alumbaugh, executive secretary of the Chester White Swine Record Association which sponsors the annual event, said the 300 barrows and open gilts scheduled to appear in the Tuesday show and Wednesday sale during the spotlight are from states as far away as Texas, Iowa and Minnesota.

Breeders from throughout the midwest are expected to attend the annual sale Wednesday and pay top prices ranging in four figures for the champion hogs, known for their length, big frame and soundness.

The local director for this year's spotlight is John Gruber, Fayette County agricultural extension agent, who is being assisted by Chester White officials and other local residents including Dave Gerber, Alan Wilt, Bob Taylor, Ron Warner, Paul Shepherd, Art Bumpus, Charles Andrews, William Diley and Jack Sommers.

In other activities Monday, the spotlight offered an open judging contest, divided into men's and women's divisions including participation by members of 4-H clubs and Future Farmers of America beginning at noon, followed by a slide and judging discussion.

Leading the type discussion were Dr. Harold Hodson, animal science instructor at the University of Southern Illinois, Dr. Gene Isler of Ohio State University, Lynn Rice and Gerald Bernard, Chester White breeders and breeding animal judge Bill Funderburg.

At 6:30 p.m. Monday, the spotlight was to relocate for an "Ohio Night" pork chop barbeque at the Sam Marting farm, CCC Highway-W.

Annexation request eyed by commission

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners heard a request for annexing more than 20 acres of county land into the city of Washington C. H. during their regular weekly meeting Monday.

Gary D. Smith, city solicitor, presented a request to the commissioners from the trustees of the West Ohio Conference of Methodist Churches to annex the conference's 20.42 acres of land adjacent to the city's industrial park into the corporation limits.

Ray Warner, chairman of the board of commissioners, scheduled a hearing on the proposed annexation for Sept. 15.

The commissioners were also to preside over a public hearing on the county commissioner's budget at 11 a.m. Monday.

On the commissioners' calendar, the first viewing of the proposed Rattlesnake Ditch improvement project will be held at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and the eight-county Central Ohio Commissioners and Engineers meeting

Tuesday's activities will include the judging of breeding animals divided into boar and gilt categories. The show is expected to begin at 8 a.m. and be followed by the selection of the national, grand and reserve champion hogs.

The annual spotlight awards banquet will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds with the Rev. Father Richard J. Connelly, pastor of St. Colman's Catholic Church in Washington C.H., as the guest speaker.

The spotlight will conclude its 1975 event with the sale of the champion boars and open gilts beginning at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the sales arena on the fairgrounds.

will be held July 17 in Lancaster to discuss pending collective bargaining legislation.

Famed volcano Mauna Loa ends 25-year hibernation

VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — "It was never a question of 'if it was going to erupt again.' It was just a question of when it would erupt," said Dr. Robert Tilling as he explained Mauna Loa volcano's weekend awakening from a quarter-century of hibernation.

For more than a year the 13,650-foot volcano showed signs of restlessness. And late Saturday night it erupted with a spectacular "curtain of fire" flowing along miles of fissures which rumbled open across the summit.

Two major rivers of lava oozed down the vast barren upper slopes of the northeast side of the mountain, fed by several large vents which continued to spout the red and yellow molten rock hours after the original activity in the summit had halted.

The flows, one moving down the north slope and the other to the east-northeast, do not pose an immediate threat to any inhabited area, said Tilling, who is in charge of the U.S. Geological Survey's volcano observatory.

However, it was the first time since 1942 that a lava flow has moved in the direction of Hilo, the largest city on the island of Hawaii, and it could be a threat if the activity continued, said geologist Donald Peterson.

Mauna Loa's previous eruption in 1953 lasted 23 days and sent a massive flow estimated at 600 million cubic yards of lava down the southwest side of the mountain.

The volcano began showing signs of new life in April 1974 when scientists first detected a swelling in the summit area.

Scientists began a much closer watch on Mauna Loa last fall when a rash of some 1,000 daily mini-earthquakes were recorded over a period of several weeks by seismic instruments set up in the summit area.

Seen as coincidental was a moderately strong earthquake which occurred Friday deep beneath the much more active Kilauea volcano, which is a separate volcano system on the lower eastern slopes of Mauna Kea.

GOP coalition has few wins

BOSTON (AP) — The White House has helped organize Republican mayors to defend its urban policies in a national mayors' conference, but so far the outnumbered GOP forces have won few victories.

White House lobbying at the annual meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors is a tradition, but the Ford administration forces have won praise for their straightforward and open style. And when Republican mayors unsuccessfully tried to scrap the conference's long-standing criticism of the defense budget, even Democratic mayors said, without rancor, that the move was quite expectable with the presidential election year coming up.

Some 50 Republican mayors formally organized a GOP mayors' caucus Sunday and members of the caucus received a nine-page statement of administration policy on various resolutions before the conference.

The administration position papers were provided by Jim Falk, associate director of the White House Domestic

Council and leader of the Ford forces at this meeting. He had briefed some of the GOP caucus organizers last month in Washington about issues likely to be raised here.

During the Nixon administration, the White House lobbyists never prepared any formal position papers for general circulation and there were often complaints of arm-twisting by Nixon men — complaints notably absent from this session.

One veteran conference staff man who maintains a nonpartisan position said, "The White House has lobbied for years except more clumsily. They didn't do it so well in the past. I think it's great."

Falk, who served in the Nixon administration but never headed the lobbying team, has indicated he wants a more open operation and has said he would be delighted to speak to the year-old Democratic mayors' caucus if it invited him.

As the resolutions committee met Sunday, Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, chairman of the Republican caucus, consulted Falk's position papers as he argued against a resolution critical of Ford's $107.7-billion defense budget for fiscal 1976. The resolution said the 18 per cent increase in Pentagon spending was "substantially more than necessary to cover inflation costs" and was proposed despite the end of Indochina war and easing of relations with China and the Soviet Union.

The resolution sponsored by Democratic Mayor Henry Maier of Milwaukee said, "Increased military spending is a less efficient way of fighting recession than government spending on public employment programs, housing, transportation and other critical urban concerns."

The Democrats prevailed in a series of votes virtually along party lines, 19 to 11, 17 to 8 and 22 to 7.

Though Republican mayors in the past had defended Nixon's Vietnam policy, they had never before seriously challenged the conference's criticism of defense spending.

Food allergies seen behind some tantrums

CHICAGO (AP) — Johnny's temper tantrum may be the result of something he just ate.

It could have been caused by bananas, chocolate, eggs, corn, milk, cola drinks or other foods, says a Pittsburgh psychologist.

Aggressive behavior can and does sometimes result from allergies to food, says the psychologist, Dr. K.E. Moyer of Carnegie-Mellon University.

"For an allergic person, eating may lead to beating, biting and battle," he writes in the July issue of Psychology Today. "While a person who is allergic to pollen suffers a stuffy nose, a person allergic to chocolate or bananas" may become very aggressive and unruly, he said.

"Aggression as an allergic response is a well-documented phenomenon that has been known to researchers since early in this century."

Nevertheless, physicians, psychologists and others dealing with children continue to misdiagnose the problem, blaming it on personality disorders, frustration "and all kinds of other reasons," he said in a telephone interview.

The frequency of such allergic reactions is unknown, he said. He added that most allergic persons do not react in this way but get rashes, stuffy noses, headaches and other symptoms.

The existence of an allergy resulting in aggressive behavior has been often proved simply by eliminating the suspected foods from the diets of allergic children.

After a period of tranquility, the children are again tested with the allergy-producing foods and their tantrums and other aggressive behavior return.

Moyer said substances that cause allergies probably affect the nervous system directly by causing swelling in the brain.

The intensity of the allergic aggressive symptoms ranges from a mild irritable reaction to a psychotic aggressive reaction, Moyer said.

IRS to bare 2nd spying operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top officials of the Internal Revenue Service spent the July 4 holiday writing a report that will reveal the existence of another secret intelligence operation in the Miami area.

IRS planned to turn over the report on the project called Operation Sunshine to a House Government Operations subcommittee today.

The subcommittee headed by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., was expected to disclose details of the project at hearings Tuesday to which IRS officials have been called to testify.

An IRS spokesman said the project and report will remain confidential until and if the Rosenthal panel makes it public.

Sources said the project deals with an IRS investigation into organized crime in the Miami area, including the possibility of racketeers infiltrating legitimate businesses.

Operation Sunshine is the second secret intelligence-gathering project known to have been run by the IRS in the Miami area.

The other, Operation Leprechaun, used informants to probe political corruption. Targets were identified initially by a federal organized crime strike force that compiled a list of 12 to 15 politicians and judges suspected of corruption.

As more names were added to the Project Leprechaun list, informants began reporting on the sex and drinking habits of prominent Miami taxpayers. IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander called off Operation Leprechaun after he took office.

An IRS spokesman, acknowledging a tight wall of secrecy still surrounding Sunshine, said he could not even say whether it was still in operation. All the spokesman said he knew about it was that "there is such a thing because they are preparing a report on it."

Congress returns to heavy schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress returns from an Independence Day recess facing debate this week on bills to open naval petroleum reserves for development and other energy proposals.

The Senate returns to work today and the House ends its 10-day recess on Tuesday. Congress will be at work for four weeks before beginning its month-long August recess.

Both the House and Senate are to consider bills on opening naval petroleum reserves for production, and the Senate also may take up a measure to extend federal price controls on so-called old domestic production.

In addition to energy legislation, the Senate will resume its debate on the still-disputed outcome of last November's New Hampshire Senate race between Democrat John A. Durkin and Republican Louis E. Wyman. On Tuesday, Senate Democrats will make a fourth attempt to halt floor debate, but the move is given poor chances for approval.

Even if the move succeeds, the issue still must go back to the Senate Rules Committee, which must settle questions on some 30 disputed ballots and report back.

In the House, a battle is shaping up between sponsors of competing versions of bills to open up naval oil reserves in Elk Hills, Calif., and elsewhere.

A bill sponsored by Reps. John Melcher, D-Mont., and Alphonzo Bell, R-Calif., would transfer jurisdiction of the naval reserves from the Navy to the Interior Department. It would allow the government to sell oil and gas reserves from Elk Hills on the open market if needed to help ease the nation's energy crisis.

The other proposal, backed by the House Armed Services Committee, also would authorize production of oil in the reserves but would keep it under Navy control. And it would specify that oil produced from Elk Hills and other naval fields could be sold only to the military.

kidnaped. The U.S. Embassy in Beirut confirmed it had been informed of the demand but refused to comment further.

Informed sources said the ransom note referred to Morgan as "this American spy" and demanded that the Embassy distribute food and construction material in the Maslakh district of Beirut, an area hard hit in the recently ended street fighting.

The Israeli cabinet had been expected at its meeting Sunday to decide whether to give in to U.S. pressure to return the Gidi and Mitla Passes in the Sinai Desert to Egypt. But after a report from the Israeli ambassador to the United States, Simha Dinitz, the cabinet announced it would "continue to seek elucidations and clarifications from the United States regarding the components of the agreement with Egypt."

Sources said that the main questions include just how far Egypt expects Israel to withdraw; whether the Egyptians agree to Tel Aviv's demand for an early warning system in the desert, and whether the United States will replace the oil Israel has been pumping from Egypt's Abu Rudeis oil fields if Israel returns them.

The victim was identified as Marion Lewis West of East Canton, Ohio. He was a native of St. Marys.

Stock list goes down

NEW YORK (AP) — Rising interest rates pushed stock prices lower again in quiet trading today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 5.79 at 866 even, and losers outstripped gainers by a 6-5 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the weekly data on money and credit conditions released by the Federal Reserve after Thursday's close tended to heighten expectations of a round of increases in the bank prime lending rate this week.

Occidental Petroleum was the most active issue on the Big Board, up 1/4 at 19 1/4. A 55,000-share block traded at 19 1/4.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .06 at 92.54.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .17 at 50.28.

Circle K topped the Amex's most-active list, down 1/4 at 7.

$2 bill on the way?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department may reintroduce the two-dollar bill by the end of this year, according to Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

In a letter to Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., dated June 21 and released today by Rosenthal, Simon said a decision has not yet been made, but indicated it would be soon.

He said the Bureau of Engraving and Printing already is preparing preliminary designs for a two-dollar bill using bicentennial themes.

"If the project fares well, with the concurrence of the Congress and other members of the administration, I would hope that we could agree to introduce the issue at the end of this year with a well-coordinated program to assure the circulation goals," Simon wrote.

Rosenthal is chairman of the House subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary affairs, which already is on record favoring the two-dollar bill.

A major reason for reintroducing the bill would be to save on printing costs, since fewer bills will be required if the two-dollar bill successfully replaces as portion of the one-dollar bills now in circulation.

Burglar gets sporting spirit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — An early-morning visitor to an athletic equipment store got into the sporting spirit early Sunday.

Police said an intruder smashed a rock through the front door of Brendamour's Sporting Goods in downtown Cincinnati. The intruder then removed a bowling ball from a display rack, rolled it into a gun rack, and proceeded to remove three pistols valued at $525.

NEW YORK (AP) — Keep an eye out tonight for "Broken Treaty at Battle Mountain" on public TV. It's a highly engrossing, if largely one-sided, documentary about Nevada land, Indians and the government.
It weaves together two themes. One is the ancient culture and modern struggle for existence of Nevada's Western Shoshone Indians.
The other is the fight of a group of Shoshone to keep the Nevada land — 24 million acres, or one-third of Nevada — the federal government says the Shoshone gave it in a treaty signed in 1863.

The one-hour show, filmed from late 1972 through 1973, is sparsely narrated by actor Robert Redford. It's followed by an unusually good panel discussion, hosted by Hugh Downs and taped this spring.

The documentary by Joel Freedman, a 32-year-old New Yorker, starts at a snail's pace, with glimpses of Shoshone life, talk of the old ways and increasing encroachment of white man's ways on the Shoshone.

It's a sad, oft-told story. But this version will hook you as it eases into the battle of Glen Holley Sr., head of a group of Shoshone "traditionalists" who deny the 1863 treaty gave away any land.

He's a proud, angry man. And it shows powerfully during a stormy Shoshone meeting when a federal official concedes the treaty was unfair but insists "by that treaty, you lost everything."

The official, referring to $26 million the federal Indian Claims Commission recently awarded the Shoshone for the land, says, "You are not selling the land. You are getting the value of the land at the time it was taken." Holley's group now is contesting the award.

While studying Holley's claims, the program doesn't point out very strongly that the award was won by another Shoshone faction which for years claimed the government took the land by gradual encroachment.

That group, whose spokesmen aren't interviewed, doesn't contest the taking. It just wants the money. Holley's faction, small but never defined in size by the show, wants no money, just the land.

The show ends on a depressing note — at least for Holley's forces. But in the 30-minute followup, Downs cites new developments.

He says after the Indian Claims Commission denied Holley's group the right to present its views prior to the $26 million judgement, the group this year went to federal court to appeal the award.

He says the appeal, filed by the Western Shoshone Legal Defense and Education Association which Holley heads, charges the rights of the "traditionalists" were "bargained away without proper representation."

One fact unmentioned in the documentary is that producer Freedman agreed to give the association at least 25 per cent of any profits — he says there've been none yet — from the film.

He says this "wasn't relevant to the film itself." He emphasized he didn't do the project to make money and doubted it'd make much anyway.

Trailer fire fatal to 3

ANSONIA, Ohio (AP) — Services will be held Tuesday for three members of an Ansonia family who died over the weekend in a fire in their mobile home.

The cause of the fire Saturday still is undetermined, authorities said. State officials were expected to inspect the scene today.

The victims were identified as Lloyd Barnett, 53, and his two sons Skyler, 6, and Randolph, 3.

Authorities said Barnett's wife, Rita, escaped from the back door of mobile home and called for help, but was unable to re-enter the burning trailer.

The bodies of her husband and sons were found inside the front door of the mobile home which had been locked.

Darke County coroner Dr. William Elliott said the victims died of suffocation.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio State University Center for Business and Economic Research said Ohio's personal income for May was up four per cent over a year ago.

The total personal income, after seasonal adjustment, was $60.2 billion, the center said.

Pot smokers reap bargains under new Indiana measure

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Marijuana smokers are reaping bargains from a new Indiana law intended to reduce the use of pot.

Sometime next month it will become a felony in Indiana to sell such paraphernalia as bongs, ice pipes, roach clips and other devices used in smoking marijuana and hashish or sniffing cocaine. It's believed to be the only law of its kind in the nation.

So-called head shops, where the paraphernalia is sold, are scrambling to clear their inventories, and in some cases customers are stocking up on supplies for the future.

One record store in downtown Indianapolis has large signs in its front window advertising the sale. "All paraphernalia must go," one sign declares. "Half Price. Last Chance," reads another.

A Muncie shop now conducting a half-price sale has found business falling off and plans a midnight sale before the law takes effect.

"This might be the best thing that's happened to us," said the manager of an Indianapolis store where business has surged. "We had a huge inventory, too much."

In Terre Haute, the biggest rush has been on cigarette papers, even though they will remain legal.

The head shops figure to break even with the sales, since markups on paraphernalia are about 50 per cent.

Nevertheless, the head shop industry has launched a campaign to fight the law in court.

The law could have minimal effect on pot users.

"I smoke out of a part of an aircraft landing gear that I made into a pipe when I was in the Air Force," one smoker said. Others use normal tobacco pipes, despite the fact they are less resistant to heat, and some improvise.

Old bridge to become walkway

* YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — A covered bridge in southern Greene County will soon become a footbridge at Antioch College's Glen Helen nature preserve.

The 130-year-old covered bridge that once served automobile traffic is to be moved from Fork Stream, put aboard a flatbed truck and rebuilt in the preserve.

Glen Helen Director Ralph Ramey said the the Glen Helen Association decided to save the structure from an Army Corps of Engineers reservoir project that will flood the area where it is now located.

The relocation will cost about $16,500, and the association has raised $1,000 toward that figure. Ramey said the cost is about three times what it required to build the bridge in the 1840s.

About $4,500 is required for raising telephone, power lines and traffic signals along the 29-mile route to its new location, Ramey said.

The bridge is one of six remaining covered bridges in Greene County.

SATURDAY, 2:30 p.m. — A tanker truck driven by Marion R. Baxla II, 22, Greenfield, struck a car driven by Betty A. Bowers, 60, Dayton, when Baxla attempted to pass the Bowers auto on Ohio 41-S in Perry Township. 11:30 a.m. — A pickup truck driven by Harry W. Fichthorn, 57, of 402 Gregg St., struck a five gallon oil can in the road which had fallen from an unidentified vehicle traveling in front of Fichthorn. Deputies stated the vehicle which had lost the can slowed to stop, but then continued on its way when Fichthorn exited his auto to check damage.

8:45 a.m. — A car belonging to Walter W. Carmen, 61, of 2875 Ohio 41-N, was struck at the intersection of Ohio 41-N and Prairie Road by a hit-skip driver.

MRS. DANIEL MORTON

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Morton now reside in Columbus

Baskets of pink gladioli and white carnations adorned the altar of South Side Church of Christ for the marriage of Miss Pamela Kay Elliott and Daniel Clayton Morton. The Rev. Charles Richmond performed the double ring ceremony June 14 for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Elliott of 1028 S. Main St., and the son of Mrs. Dorothy Morton of 902 Sycamore St. Mrs. Charles Richmond presented "Precious and Few" and "One Hand One Heart."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a sheer polyester dotted Swiss gown lined in taffeta with Florentine styled skirt, bishop sleeves and high neckline trimmed with Venice lace at the bibbed bodice. She also wore a chapel-length mantilla, and carried a cascade of pink roses, stephanotis with baby's breath.

Mrs. Debbie Jennings, the honor attendant, wore a blue and green floral gown with sheer nylon over taffeta trimmed with avocado satin ribbon at the bodice, and a wide-brimmed hat. The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to the honor attendant, except in pink with green. Their hats were trimmed with avocado satin bows with long ribbon streamers. They carried colonial bouquets of pink and blue daisies, baby's breath and white carnations.

The mother of the bride chose a pink polyester A-line gown with long sleeves and white accessories. Mrs. Morton chose a blue polyester straight-line dress and jacket ensemble with which she combined blue accessories. Both mothers had shoulder corsages of pink, and blue daisies, with baby's breath. The grandmothers and hostesses for the reception had corsages of white daisies trimmed with pink and blue ribbon.

Tim Hill of Columbus served as best man for his college roommate. Randy Creamer of Washington C.H., David Grubb of Columbus, and Mike Kreemer of Grove City, cousin of the groom, seated the wedding guests.

Hostesses for the reception were Sherry Kimmet and Minda Knisley with Vicki Clay presiding at the guest book.

The reception took place at the church in Fellowship Hall. The bride's table featured a three-tiered wedding cake encircled with pink carnations and leather leaf.

Mrs. Morton, the groom's mother, was hostess for the rehearsal dinner.

The new Mrs. Morton, a 1975 graduate of Washington Senior High School, is a former employee of Huntington Bank. Her husband, a 1972 graduate of WSHS, attended Ohio University, Athens, and is now employed by the State of Ohio, Department of Liquor Control, as computer operator.

The couple is now residing at 1055 Merrimar Circle, Columbus.

School aid dilemma faces Ohio solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Finance Committee members are in a dilemma over a Senate-approved school aid distribution formula, probably the biggest priority item remaining on this year's legislative calendar.

Formal hearings were suspended before the General Assembly began its holiday break June 27, and none is scheduled this week. The House returns Tuesday and the Senate Wednesday, hopeful of winding up major business by the end of the month.

Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton, the ranking Republican member of the Finance Committee, said informal discussions are being held on the controversial "equal yield" formula.

It would replace an embattled school foundation formula with a new system of equalizing state aid to primary and secondary education. The 1975-1977 budget contains about $460 million in "new money" for schools, up from the

$1.9 billion they received in the biennium ended June 30.

Young said the biggest controversy in the bill is a provision that could have the effect of ending the state's property tax rollback in 1977. Lawmakers of both parties have been bombarded with letters of protest since the Senate approved the measure May 14 by a vote of 26-6.

Other points of contention, as far as he was concerned, the Dayton lawmaker said, involve language "insisted on" by lobbyists for the 83-000-member Ohio Education Association.

One requires schools to close when less than a third of the students and teachers are present, or face the loss of state aid. Young said the provision is designed to enhance the effectiveness of strikes that may be authorized by another pending bill.

The same applies, he said, to a requirement for schools to have a pupil-teacher ratio of 25-1 "per building," instead of per classroom. He said it would mean there would have to be a teacher for each 25 members of a school band, an athletic team, and other activities that do not fit classroom situations.

"All that's got to come out of the bill," Young said. "It's all tacked on language that shouldn't be included. What we want is a pure reform bill."

John Hall, chief lobbyist for the OEA, was on vacation and unavailable for comment, his office said.

Otherwise, Democrats in the legislature will huddle this week to decide if they should try to override at least some of the 72 items vetoed by GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes in the state's new two-year appropriations bill.

A Senate subcommittee is expected to meet today to begin considering amendments to a House-passed bill aimed at solving the state's medical malpractice problem. The subcommittee heard testimony intermittently during the legislature's July 4 holiday.

In other business, legislative leaders are calling for continued hearings on other major bills including drug abuse, rape law revision, collective bargaining, and probate court reform.

Recommended for passage by a House committee and awaiting a floor vote is another major bill that provides for no fault automobile insurance in Ohio.

Formal introduction is expected in the House Tuesday of Rhodes' bill to reappropriate $344 million he vetoed out of the budget. It was placed by Democrats in the Controlling Board instead of designated to state agencies.

The funds include $258 million for welfare subsidies, $56 million for a state employee pay raise, $15 million for mental retardation programs, $10 million for a special University of Cincinnati subsidy, and two so-called "lay off" prevention funds—$3 million for the natural resources department and $2 million for the taxation department.

Young GOP ends meet

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Young Republicans Federation wound up its 1975 convention Sunday, leaving a pot of seething controversies slightly stirred by the delegates. The strongest resolution issued by the convention was a resolution blaming President Ford, as well as the Democrat-controlled Congress, for the nation's economic mess.

The conference heard from a host of Republican leaders who called for party unity. Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan took pains to avoid becoming embroiled in any behind-the-scenes convention controversy.

A number of delegates had hoped to force the endorsement of a GOP presidential candidate for next year's election, a battle between Reagan and

Ford forces was sidestepped when the delegates agreed to call for an open convention next year.

Some delegates said they were miffed because President Ford did not attend, even though he made brief visits to nearby Cincinnati and Cleveland.

Cash distributed to school districts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some $181,270 has been distributed to 30 Ohio school districts in depository interest, royalties and proceeds from the rent and sale of school and ministerial lands, the state auditor's office said today.

CAUGHT NAPPING — Post 25 hurler Randy Gardner caught a Chillicothe Post 62 runner leaning the wrong way Saturday in helping himself to a 6-2 win. Gardner picked two Post 62 runners off base. In this last pick off peg the Chillicothe runner thought he beat the throw and he got to sit on the bench sooner than he planned after the umpire ejected him from the contest.

WCH linkster earns All-American honors

ASHLAND — Ashland College's banner year in golf, which included a fourth-place finish in the NCAA Division III National Tournament, had even more to celebrate recently when Rob Herron of Washington C.H. and Kim Mansfield of Mansfield were named to the All-American team.

Herron tied for 19th place in the medalist race of the national championships. The junior, a former Blue Lion linkster, shot 74-81-76-231 to improve on his season average of 77.6 strokes coming into the nationals. He was selected as an honorable mention All-American.

Mansfield, a senior, averaged 77.0 strokes during the regular season and then shot 77-80-78-235 in the nationals at Ft. Campbell, Ky. He played with the Ashland golf teams that captured 13th and 12th the previous two seasons in the nationals.

Though he didn't win All-American honors, Ashland's top shooter in the tournament was junior Jack Renlesham of Lyndhurst with 80-74-74-228. He pulled off a surprising performance considering he averaged just over .80 strokes during the regular season.

Ashland Golf Coach Gary Praht said, "We are certainly honored to have two All-Americans and finish so high in the nationals. Mansfield has had an outstanding career and has been a key man on three of our high national-finish teams."

"Herron enjoyed his finest collegiate season and he will have to be a mainstay on our team next year as three of our five men return," the coach concluded.

Herron showed his All-American form last week at the Washington Country Club when he fired a 69 and came back with a 67 the next day. He hopes to gun for his third club title later this summer.

CHILLICOTHE — Post 25's Randy Gardner can thank the defensive performances of both his teammates and the opposition as the Court House righthander registered a 6-2 victory over Chillicothe Post 62 Saturday.

Righthander Terry Rodgers pegged a Post 62 runner at the plate and the Washington infielder backed up Gardner by turning a bases-loaded double play while the Chillicothe nine committed four errors allowing three unearned runs.

Gardner gave up six hits, walked seven and struck out only two in the seven inning affair, but he helped himself out by picking off two runners as Post 62 stranded nine men on the basepaths.

Post 25 batsmen got six hits too, but three errors cost the Chillicotheans three runs to pad the winning margin.

Court House got on the scoreboard first in the fourth frame as Phil Roll and Jeff DeWeese walked and Terry Rodgers brought them home with the help of an error by the Post 62 left-fielder.

Rodgers singled sharply to left and the ball rolled through the outfielders legs allowing Roll and DeWeese to score without a play.

Alan Conner singled home Rodgers one out later to make the score 3-0.

Post 25 added two more in the fifth when Randy Sparkman walked to second on a ground out and scored on Roll's double into the left-centerfield gap.

Roll scored on a throwing error by the Chillicothe catcher to put the

Country Club holds Holiday tournaments

The team of Ronald Cornwell, Dan Huffman, John Arbogast, Dave Boswell and Dave Ellis won the July 4th Five-Man Team Best Ball tourney at the Washington Country Club.

The winners finished with a 28-under par 116 to win the event by three strokes over the team of Jim Polk, Glen Helmick Jr., Irvin Reeves, Ralph Douglas and Robert Anderson.

The two best-ball scores per hole were used to decide the team score as Robert Hagerty, Jim Wightman, Wilson Moon, Ralph Cook and Stephen Willis finished four strokes off the pace with a 120 and the team of Allen Willoughby, Jack Marti, S.E. Vaughn, Paul Grim and Bill Sloughton finished with a 121.

Willoughby posted the best individual score on the day with a 72 in the 18-team tourney.

In the Mixed Scotch Twosome event, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Willoughby won the Class A division with a 41.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Helmick and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanderson tied for the low net score in the A's division while Mr. and Mrs. Gene Heath and Mr. and Mrs. Birch Rice tied for the low putt contest with 15.

In the Class B field, Bucky Dumford and Mrs. Jim Kirk took the top spot with a 45 and Mr. and Mrs. Loren Noble had the low net score of 35. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hyer and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Moon tied for the low number of putts with 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Parrett shot a 51 to take honors in the Class C division while Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kellough took net score honors with a 36. Three couples tied for the "C" division lowest number of putts with 16. They were Mr. and Mrs. Roland Holthouse, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wade and Mr. and Mrs. Milbourne Flee.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Heer won the "Blind Bogey" award.

Washington Legionnaires up by five runs.

A throwing error by pitcher Jeff Kuhner, who relieved the starter Scott Whrig in the fifth, accounted for Post 25's final run.

Chillicothe threatened in the second frame until Kevin Skaggs hit into a picture-perfect double play from Sparkman to Scherer to Zurface with the bases loaded.

Post 62 threatened again in the third to put the first tallies on the board as

Ruffian destroyed after race injury

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruffian was humanely destroyed early today, the victim of a shattered right ankle that ended her sensational racing career just one-half mile after the start of The Great Match Race against Foolish Pleasure.

"Don't let her suffer any more," owner Stuart Janney told veterinarians and trainer Frank Whiteley after the coal black filly had dislodged a cast and protective brace on her right leg.

The decision to end the life of the winner of her first 10 races came at about 2 a.m., EDT, a spokesman for the New York Racing Association said, and followed by 2½ hours an operation on the shattered sesamoids in her right leg.

The daughter of Reviewer broke down Sunday at Belmont Park with about three quarters of a mile to go while she had a half-length lead in her $350,000 11-4 mile match against the Kentucky Derby winner.

Jacinto Vasquez immediately pulled Ruffian up and dismounted. The leg

Randy Quisenberry tried to score from second base on a sharp single to rightfield. Rodgers fielded the ball and threw a perfect strike to DeWeese at the plate nailing the Post 62 runner.

Gardner picked a runners off second base and first to kill rallies as Post 25 went on to post the 6-2 win of a make-up game rained out earlier in the season.

Post 25 takes the field next on Wednesday against Chillicothe Post 757 at the Washington Senior High diamond for a single game.

was put into a plastic cast and Ruffian was removed by a horse ambulance at 7:45 p.m., an hour and 35 minutes after the race.

Ruffian underwent surgery that was to last almost four hours. But the winner of New York's Triple Crown for Fillies could not be saved.

"She was running very well," Vasquez said. "She changed her lead and I could feel something happening. It was her right leg."

While Vasquez pulled Ruffian up, Foolish Pleasure continued to the finish line to win the $225,000 first prize.

"I am so sorry to see such a fine filly get hurt," said Braulio Baeza, who got the mount on Foolish Pleasure when Vasquez, the regular rider for both 3-year-olds, chose to ride the previously unbeaten Ruffian.

"It's a shame. I saw going down the backstretch that he (Vasquez) was working to try and get away, but my colt stayed with them. Then I saw it happen. I could hear it crack."

Reds swamp Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — When San Diego's Hawaii farm club acquired Hector Torres from the Chicago White Sox last year, the veteran infielder had a .197 lifetime batting average for six seasons in the majors and little hope of returning.

Today, the 29-year-old, sixfoot, 175-pounder is averaging .305 with the San Diego Padres and represents perhaps their No. 1 surprise of 1975.

"Being here has changed my philosophy about baseball," Torres said Sunday after he collected half of San Diego's six hits in Cincinnati's third straight victory over the Padres, 13-2.

When Torres was with Houston, the Cubs and Montreal, he worried less about not playing regularly than he did about the fear that he would be sent to the minors.

"I never expected to be here this season, so I decided to relax and everything that has happened has been a bonus," he said Sunday.

Torres had a sore arm when the White Sox sold him last year to Hawaii. Though he was a non-roster player, the Padres invited him to spring training last March and, sound physically, he quickly established himself as the finest utility infielder the Padres have had in their seven seasons.

Sunday's game was Cincinnati's third straight victory over the Padres and the Reds closed the series with a 3-1 edge despite Torres' efforts. The Reds mounted a 6-0 lead in the first inning and a half against starter and loser Joe McIntosh, 6-7, Dave Freisleben and Rich Folkers.

The Padres stranded 12 runners, 10 of them in the first five innings against starter Clay Kirby, 6-3, who gained his fifth victory in a row, thanks to four shutout innings of relief by Pedro Borbon.

Torres doubled to set up Randy Hundley's run-scoring single in the second inning and singled in the third to drive in Willie McCovey, who had doubled.

Joe Morgan, George Foster and Darrel Chaney each drove in two runs for the Reds, who benefitted from two hits apiece from Morgan and Pete Rose.

The win gives the Reds an eight-game edge over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who concluded their best homestand in more than two months Sunday with a 5-1 victory over San Francisco.

Anderson believer in July 4th tale

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sparky Anderson is a new believer in the old tale that the first-place team in each of baseball's major leagues on July 4 will go on to win the pennant.

"I believe," attested Anderson, whose Reds had opened up an eight-game lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers by Independence Day. It is a change of heart for the 41-year-old manager, and understandably so.

Two years ago the Reds were locked in second place in the National League's Western Division and the Dodgers were nearly out of sight. Last year, in the same position, Anderson still didn't believe. But now with the Reds well in front of the defending league champs, the silver-haired skipper believes.

The Reds flaunted superstition in 1973 as they staged a miraculous comeback to catch Los Angeles, only to lose in the playoffs. Last season the miracle fell four games short and the Reds watched post season play on television.

Will lightning strike again in reverse? Anderson doubts it, but Dodger outfielder Jimmy Wynn disagrees.

"Forget about tradition," Wynn remarked after a 1-0 July 4 loss to San Francisco. "We're only eight out. With three months to go, anything can happen. I'll be leaving World Series tickets for my ex roomie, Joe Morgan."

"Hell," retorted a smiling Morgan when informed of Wynn's quote, "he didn't leave me any last year."

"It drains you to have to play from behind," said Anderson, who speaks from experience. "That's what happened to us last year. We got even, but we were too beat to go past them. We just couldn't go any further."

Additional evidence of the Reds' bright outlook—bright enough to make oddsmaker Jimmy the Greek install the Reds as 1-5 favorites to take the division title —is the fact that they traditionally have been slow starters, while Los Angeles is usually a first-half ballclub.

"The weather gives them a tremendous edge," Anderson said. "No doubleheaders, no off days and more home games early because of the weather. That helps the Dodgers."

Meanwhile, the slow-starting Reds are playing well over .600 ball, traditionally slow-starting pitcher Jack Billingham is 10-3, and all of a sudden the Dodgers find themselves as the team looking up from second place.

"They're doing a lot of talking," Anderson said of Los Angeles. What he didn't have to say is that all the Reds are doing is winning.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Surgery Can Correct Aneurysm

What is an aneurysm of a blood vessel? Is it unusual for this to happen to a young person of 30 who has never been ill?

Miss E. L., Mo.

Dear Miss L.:

All blood vessels are lined with thin muscles. These expand and contract as blood is pumped through them. Occasionally, a weakened spot in the muscle produces a bubble, or aneurysm, on the outside of the blood vessel.

This resembles a large blister that sometimes appears on the inner tube of an automobile tire at the point where the rubber has become worn or weakened. Aneurysms can be the result of disease, of injury or of a birth defect.

Rupture of an aneurysm is, of course, a dangerous condition. Control of the bleeding is urgent and can be accomplished when the condition is recognized immediately. The seriousness of the problem depends, too, on the location of the aneurysm and the size of the blood vessel that is involved.

An aneurysm in a young person who has not been in ill health is probably due to some congenital malformation.

Special surgical techniques can remove the diseased portion of an artery to prevent the imminent threat of a hemorrhage.

Dacron and other synthetic sleeves are used to replace arteries with aneurysms. The advances of this type of surgery have been enormous in the past 20 years.

My doctor performs a rectal examination each year. Does this mean he is suspicious of a cancer?

Mr. P. J. G., Nev.

Dear Mr. G.:

No general examination is really complete without a rectal examination. The only way to recognize an early growth is by performing this simple procedure.

The fact that your physician does this in no way indicates that a tumor or cancer is present. It satisfies him to know that there is no evidence of disease in this hidden area.

Your physician is wise and careful about the completeness of his general examination.

Opening lead - four of clubs.

The advantages and disadvantages of psychics have been argued among top players for many years, without a unanimous conclusion. But right or wrong, like it or not, the psychic does add spice to the game, as demonstrated by this deal from a match many years ago between Italy and the United States.

West (Sidney Silodor, playing with George Rapee) opened the bidding with a diamond. He knew he lacked the values for a proper opening bid, but he hoped to talk his esteemed opponents (Avarelli and Belladonna) out of their best contract.

The famous Italian pair got to three notrump on the bidding shown and made six for a score of 690 points.

At the second table, where John Crawford was North and this writer was South for the U.S. team, the bidding went:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♦	Pass	6 ♥

There is considerable doubt about the best contract on the combined North-South cards, but luckily I made the slam with an overtrick for a score of 1,460 points.

West could have stopped the slam had he led a spade, the suit North had opened the bidding with. But, reasonably enough, he led a diamond, and making the slam was now as easy as pie. I won the diamond with the jack, cashed three rounds of clubs, discarding two spades, and played a low heart. When the king appeared, I made all the tricks.

The U.S. gained 770 points on the deal, but whether it was earned income or a capital gain is left to the tender judgment of my readers.

More guardsmen take stand

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The sixth of eight Ohio National Guardsmen indicted on criminal charges in the 1970 Kent State University shootings was to take the stand today in the civil trial arising out of the incident.

Top on the list of upcoming witnesses was James D. McGee, a mustachioed carpenter from Ravenna.

The shooting victims and their families, who are suing for $46 million in damages, already have called Mathew McManus, James Pierce, Barry Morris, William Perkins and Lawrence Shafer.

Still on the witness list with McGee are Leon Smith and Ralph Zoller.

Last fall, a federal judge ordered that charges against the eight be dropped. The judge ruled that the government had failed to prove that they maliciously had violated the civil rights of the victims.

As the trial entered its eighth week, the plaintiffs also were expected sometime in the future to call Gov. James Rhodes, former Adj. Gen. Sylveste Del vcorso, ex-Brig. Gen. Robert Canterbury and Col. Charles Fassinger.

Rhodes ordered the troops to Kent during a weekend of rioting sparked by the U.S. military incursion into Cambodia. On the following Monday, a 13-second volley of guard gunfire left four students dead and nine wounded.

One of the plaintiffs' lawyers said it would be about three weeks before they rested their case.

Time has begun to weigh on the minds of lawyers for both sides as well as U.S. District Court Judge Don Young.

"I've been wondering how I'm going to discuss some of the witnesses in final arguments," said one of the lawyers defending the guardsmen. "Am I going to say to the jury, 'Remember that round-faced young fellow who said...?' "It's something you always worry about with a jury, whether they feel you're taking up their time, and not getting anywhere," he said.

"It's a factor," agreed a young attorney for the victims and their families.

Young has not approached either side about stepping up its pace but has started objecting to repetitive questions and testimony even before lawyers can get to their feet.

An apparently unspoken agreement has developed, allowing leading questions to be asked on direct examination to save time. The questions are allowed only in areas where the ground has been covered thoroughly and where the facts have not been contested.

"After all, it's been seven weeks," the plaintiffs' attorney said.

"We'll allow it as long as the other side doesn't mistate the evidence," the defense lawyer added.

He said the defense has been presenting its case in cross examination, with immediate rebuttal of testimony from witnesses called by the victims.

12 persons killed on Ohio highways

By The Associated Press
Ohio had a relatively safe Fourth of July weekend on the highways, recording only about half the number of traffic deaths expected by state statisticians.

The highway patrol reported it counted 12 fatalities during the 78-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Thursday and ended at midnight Sunday.

The deaths included two pedestrians and one motorcyclist, and there was one double-fatality accident.

According to the patrol, none of those killed was wearing seat belts.

Last year, when the Independence Day weekend was one day longer, 29 persons died in Ohio traffic accidents.

Body found in reservoir

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Authorities in three counties today attempted to identify a badly decomposed body found Saturday in Hoover Reservoir, part of the City of Columbus water system.

The body, wrapped in flowered bed sheets and weighted by two truck tire rims was pulled from the reservoir in Delaware County north of here by two Columbus Marine and Park Patrol officers.

The Delaware County sheriff's office said an autopsy at the Hamilton County Morgue in Cincinnati failed to disclose cause of death but revealed that the body was that of a white woman in her early 30s. They said it had been in the reservoir for six months to a year.

The body was discovered during a patrol by the Columbus Marine and Park Police.

Warm weather brought the body to the surface, Sgt. William Lavery said.

He said it had been mired in mud under about six feet of water in a cove 150 yards from shore.

Ford urges changes in highway funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is proposing major changes in how the nation finances its highway system, including a greater role for the states in making the decisions.

The proposed legislation he will send to Congress today would put a higher priority on completing the Interstate highway system and less priority on local routes, a White House source said.

The 42,500-mile Interstate system is now 85 per cent open to traffic.

The source said Ford also wants to combine about 30 highway grant programs into four broad programs.

Other sources said several major changes have been made in the proposal that was readied for Congress in January but never sent. The sources said the changes now being proposed would be less far-reaching than the January proposals, but still would feature an increased role for the states.

That proposal was delayed to allow the new transportation secretary, William T. Coleman Jr., time to review it and recommend any changes he felt necessary.

The January draft proposal included recommendations for diverting a large proportion of the taxes that now go into the highway trust fund, which finances highway construction. Currently all revenues collected from the four-cent-per-gallon federal tax on gasoline flow into the trust fund.

Under the January proposal, only one cent of the gasoline tax would go into the fund. The rest would have gone to the states or into the general revenue where it could be used for everything but Interstate projects.

The highway legislation is sure to stir controversy in Congress. Supporters of mass transit have tried repeatedly to divert some of the money from the highway trust fund into mass transit projects while others have fought to maintain the current highway funding system.

The highway message kicks off a busy week for the President.

He is expected to make the long-awaited formal announcement of his candidacy for the 1976 presidential race

on Tuesday, and on Friday he will begin a three-day campaign-style trip to Illinois and Michigan.

Ford spent the July 4 holiday weekend in the Washington area. He officially launched the new White House swimming pool by going five laps for photographers and reporters. He pronounced the pool "just the right length."

On the business side, Ford met with Indonesian President Suharto. It was another in a series of meetings to give assurances to Asian leaders that the United States plans to keep its commitments in that part of the world despite the withdrawal from Vietnam. Ford spent Sunday on the golf course and spent a quiet evening with his family.

Public-service jobs improperly filled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new internal report by the Labor Department's chief investigator says 16.5 per cent of federal public-service jobs checked were improperly filled.

The report said the jobs program generally is performing well, but it criticized federal administrators for failing to enforce hiring guidelines and for failing to reclaim up to $17.5 million in allegedly misspent funds.

The object of the criticism, manpower administrator William H. Kolberg, declined repeated requests for an interview last week after The Associated Press obtained a copy of the internal report. "He doesn't want to talk about it," a spokesman said.

The report was written by Frank Yeager, Director of Audit and Investigations for the Labor Department. It is based on a statistical sample of 1,147 public service jobs in 10 localities.

More than 400,000 persons were employed in federal public service jobs in cities all across the country during

13 dead as Israelis hit camps

Mideast fighting flares

By The Associated Press

Israeli air, land and sea forces blasted Palestine refugee camps in southern Lebanon today, and reports from the area said at least 13 persons were killed and scores of refugee huts were destroyed.

The Israeli command said the raids were against suspected guerrilla bases and that Arab gunners retaliated by firing rockets and other shells at two Jewish settlements just south of the Lebanese border. The Israelis listed no casualties.

The attack came less than 72 hours after an Arab terrorist bomb went off on Jerusalem's busy Jaffa Road. Officials said today that another victim of the blast had died, raising to 14 the number of Arabs and Jews killed in the Holy City's worst terrorist incident in a quarter century.

The Israeli command communique made no mention of that attack. But it said the targets of today's raids were guerrilla bases used by Palestinian raiders in various operations against Israel, including an amphibious attack on a Tel Aviv hotel last March.

In other major Middle East developments:

—An obscure terrorist group in Beirut threatened to kill kidnapped U.S. Army Col. Ernest R. Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., by 9 p.m. Wednesday (2 p.m. EDT) unless the United States gives food and building materials to "the toiling masses." The ransom demand was accompanied by photos of Morgan in captivity and three tape recordings in which he said he was being treated well and was impressed by the seriousness of his captors' motives.

—The Israeli cabinet postponed for at least a week any decision on further withdrawal in the Sinai desert in order to seek "elucidations and clarifications" from Washington on various issues in the proposed new agreement with Egypt.

The Israeli command said its "combined forces" struck against "several terrorist bases" in the area of Rashadiyeh and Tyre on the south Lebanese coast. The communique said all Israeli troops returned safely from the raid, but the Palestinian guerrilla command claimed its forces shot down one Israeli jet.

The Lebanese Defense Ministry said the four-hour attack began at about 2 a.m. when Israeli planes dropped flares and three gunboats opened fire on the big Rashadiyeh and Burj el Shemali refugee camps outside Tyre, 35 miles south of Beirut on the Lebanese coast.

The communique said authorities

still were taking stock of damage and casualties. Reports from the camps said the dead included a refugee couple and their two small boys killed in a direct rocket hit on their home.

The Lebanese army said 13 villages

in southernmost Lebanon came under intermittent artillery bombardment from midnight to dawn.

The death threat against Col. Morgan was the first word of him since he was

CHESTER WHITE SPOTLIGHT — This Chester White was in the "spotlight" Monday during the on-foot market barrow showing at the annual Chester White Summer Spotlight show and sale, being held through Wednesday on the Fayette County Fairgrounds. Nearly 300 champion hogs are expected to be shown and sold during the three-day event.

Chester White spotlight opens

Grand champion honors went to Nebraska and Illinois breeders Monday morning during opening activities of the three-day National Chester White Summer Spotlight being held today through Wednesday on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

The spotlight, appearing in Fayette County, the fourth leading hog county in Ohio, is featuring nearly 300 champion hogs from Chester White herds in approximately 15 different states throughout the midwest this year.

Owner of the grand champion barrow was Al Deets of Kearney, Neb. while the Ken-O-Kaw Farms of Windsor, Ill. was awarded the champion gilt during the on-foot market hog show Monday morning.

Selected as second place winners by breeding animal judge Bill Funderburg of Greenville during the on-foot market show were Larry Butler of Leipsic in the barrow class and the Sunflower Chesters Farm of Manhattan, Kan. in the gilt class judging. Sixteen barrows and seventeen gilts were entered for judging in the on-foot market hog show. The market hogs were then shipped to a packing plant for the carcass judging Monday afternoon.

Lyle R. Alumbaugh, executive secretary of the Chester White Swine Record Association which sponsors the annual event, said the 300 barrows and open gilts scheduled to appear in the Tuesday show and Wednesday sale during the spotlight are from states as far away as Texas, Iowa and Minnesota.

Breeders from throughout the midwest are expected to attend the annual sale Wednesday and pay top prices ranging in four figures for the champion hogs, known for their length, big frame and soundness.

The local director for this year's spotlight is John Gruber, Fayette County agricultural extension agent, who is being assisted by Chester White officials and other local residents including Dave Gerber, Alan Wilt, Bob Taylor, Ron Warner, Paul Shepherd, Art Bumpus, Charles Andrews, William Diley and Jack Sommers.

In other activities Monday, the spotlight offered an open judging contest, divided into men's and women's divisions including participation by members of 4-H clubs and Future Farmers of America beginning at noon, followed by a slide and judging discussion.

Leading the type discussion were Dr. Harold Hodson, animal science instructor at the University of Southern Illinois, Dr. Gene Isler of Ohio State University, Lynn Rice and Gerald Bernard, Chester White breeders and breeding animal judge Bill Funderburg.

At 6:30 p.m. Monday, the spotlight was to relocate for an "Ohio Night" pork chop barbecue at the Sam Mar-ting farm, CCC Highway-W.

Tuesday's activities will include the judging of breeding animals divided into boar and gilt categories. The show is expected to begin at 8 a.m. and be followed by the selection of the national, grand and reserve champion hogs.

The annual spotlight awards banquet will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Mahan Building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds with the Rev. Father Richard J. Connelly, pastor of St. Colman's Catholic Church in Washington C.H., as the guest speaker.

The spotlight will conclude its 1975 event with the sale of the champion boars and open gilts beginning at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the sales arena on the fairgrounds.

From industrial park

Annexation request eyed by commission

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners heard a request for annexing more than 20 acres of county land into the city of Washington C. H. during their regular weekly meeting Monday.

Gary D. Smith, city solicitor, presented a request to the commissioners from the trustees of the West Ohio Conference of Methodist Churches to annex the conference's 20.42 acres of land adjacent to the city's industrial park into the corporation limits.

Ray Warner, chairman of the board of commissioners, scheduled a hearing on the proposed annexation for Sept. 15.

The commissioners were also to preside over a public hearing on the county commissioner's budget at 11 a.m. Monday.

On the commissioners' calendar, the first viewing of the proposed Rattlesnake Ditch improvement project will be held at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday and the eight-county Central Ohio Commissioners and Engineers meeting will be held July 17 in Lancaster to discuss pending collective bargaining legislation.

Famed volcano Mauna Loa ends 25-year hibernation

VOLCANO, Hawaii (AP) — "It was never a question of 'if it was going to erupt again.' It was just a question of when it would erupt," said Dr. Robert Tilling as he explained Mauna Loa volcano's weekend awakening from a quarter-century of hibernation.

For more than a year the 13,650-foot volcano showed signs of restlessness. And late Saturday night it erupted with a spectacular "curtain of fire" flowing along miles of fissures which rumbled open across the summit.

Two major rivers of lava oozed down the vast barren upper slopes of the northeast side of the mountain, fed by several large vents which continued to spout the red and yellow molten rock hours after the original activity in the summit had halted.

The flows, one moving down the north slope and the other to the east-northeast, do not pose an immediate threat to any inhabited area, said Tilling, who is in charge of the U.S. Geological Survey's volcano observatory.

However, it was the first time since 1942 that a lava flow has moved in the direction of Hilo, the largest city on the island of Hawaii, and it could be a threat if the activity continued, said geologist Donald Peterson.

Mauna Loa's previous eruption in 1953 lasted 23 days and sent a massive flow estimated at 600 million cubic yards of lava down the southwest side of the mountain.

The volcano began showing signs of new life in April 1974 when scientists first detected a swelling in the summit area.

Scientists began a much closer watch on Mauna Loa last fall when a rash of some 1,000 daily mini-earthquakes were recorded over a period of several weeks by seismic instruments set up in the summit area.

Seen as coincidental was a moderately strong earthquake which occurred Friday deep beneath the much more active Kilauea volcano, which is a separate volcano system on the lower eastern slopes of Mauna Kea.

GOP coalition has few wins

BOSTON (AP) — The White House has helped organize Republican mayors to defend its urban policies in a national mayors' conference, but so far the outnumbered GOP forces have won few victories.

White House lobbying at the annual meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors is a tradition, but the Ford administration forces have won praise for their straightforward and open style. And when Republican mayors unsuccessfully tried to scrap the conference's long-standing criticism of the defense budget, even Democratic mayors said, without rancor, that the move was quite expectable with the presidential election year coming up.

Some 50 Republican mayors formally organized a GOP mayors' caucus Sunday and members of the caucus received a nine-page statement of administration policy on various resolutions before the conference.

The administration position papers were provided by Jim Falk, associate director of the White House Domestic

Council and leader of the Ford forces at this meeting. He had briefed some of the GOP caucus organizers last month in Washington about issues likely to be raised here.

During the Nixon administration, the White House lobbyists never prepared any formal position papers for general circulation and there were often complaints of arm-twisting by Nixon men — complaints notably absent from this session.

One veteran conference staff man who maintains a nonpartisan position said, "The White House has lobbied for years except more clumsily. They didn't do it so well in the past. I think it's great."

Falk, who served in the Nixon administration but never before headed the lobbying team, has indicated he wants a more open operation and has said he would be delighted to speak to the year-old Democratic mayors' caucus if it invited him.

As the resolutions committee met Sunday, Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk, chairman of the Republican caucus, consulted Falk's position papers as he argued against a resolution critical of Ford's $107.7-billion defense budget for fiscal 1976. The resolution said the 18 per cent increase in Pentagon spending was "substantially more than necessary to cover inflation costs" and was proposed despite the end of Indochina war and easing of relations with China and the Soviet Union.

The resolution sponsored by Democratic Mayor Henry Maier of Milwaukee said, "Increased military spending is a less efficient way of fighting recession than government spending on public employment programs, housing, transportation and other critical urban concerns."

The Democrats prevailed in a series of votes virtually along party lines, 19 to 11, 17 to 8 and 22 to 7.

Though Republican mayors in the past had defended Nixon's Vietnam policy, they had never before seriously challenged the conference's criticism of defense spending.

Food allergies seen behind some tantrums

CHICAGO (AP) — Johnny's temper tantrum may be the result of something he just ate.

It could have been caused by bananas, chocolate, eggs, corn, milk, cola drinks or other foods, says a Pittsburgh psychologist.

Aggressive behavior can and does sometimes result from allergies to food, says the psychologist, Dr. K.E. Moyer of Carnegie-Mellon University.

"For an allergic person, eating may lead to beating, biting and battle," he writes in the July issue of Psychology Today. "While a person who is allergic to pollen suffers a stuffy nose, a person allergic to chocolate or bananas" may become very aggressive and unruly, he said.

"Aggression as an allergic response is a well-documented phenomenon that has been known to researchers since early in this century."

Nevertheless, physicians, psychologists and others dealing with children continue to misdiagnose the problem, blaming it on personality disorders, frustration "and all kinds of other reasons," he said in a telephone interview.

The frequency of such allergic reactions is unknown, he said. He added that most allergic persons do not react in this way but get rashes, stuffy noses, headaches and other symptoms.

The existence of an allergy resulting in aggressive behavior has been often proved simply by eliminating the suspected foods from the diets of allergic children.

After a period of tranquility, the children are again tested with the allergy-producing foods and their tantrums and other aggressive behavior return.

Moyer said substances that cause allergies probably affect the nervous system directly by causing swelling in the brain.

The intensity of the allergic aggressive symptoms ranges from a mild irritable reaction to a psychotic aggressive reaction, Moyer said.

IRS to bare 2nd spying operation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top officials of the Internal Revenue Service spent the July 4 holiday writing a report that will reveal the existence of another secret intelligence operation in the Miami area.

IRS planned to turn over the report on the project called Operation Sunshine to a House Government Operations subcommittee today.

The subcommittee headed by Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., was expected to disclose details of the project at hearings Tuesday to which IRS officials have been called to testify.

An IRS spokesman said the project and report will remain confidential until and if the Rosenthal panel makes it public.

Sources said the project deals with an IRS investigation into organized crime in the Miami area, including the possibility of racketeers infiltrating legitimate businesses.

Operation Sunshine is the second

secret intelligence-gathering project known to have been run by the IRS in the Miami area.

The other, Operation Leprechaun, used informants to probe political corruption. Targets were identified initially by a federal organized crime strike force that compiled a list of 12 to 15 politicians and judges suspected of corruption.

As more names were added to the Project Leprechaun list, informants began reporting on the sex and drinking habits of prominent Miami taxpayers. IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander called off Operation Leprechaun after he took office.

An IRS spokesman, acknowledging a tight wall of secrecy still surrounding Sunshine, said he could not even say whether it was still in operation. All the spokesman said he knew about it was that "there is such a thing because they are preparing a report on it."

Congress returns to heavy schedule

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress returns from an Independence Day recess facing debate this week on bills to open naval petroleum reserves for development and other energy proposals.

The Senate returns to work today and the House ends its 10-day recess on Tuesday. Congress will be at work for four weeks before beginning its month-long August recess.

Both the House and Senate are to consider bills on opening naval petroleum reserves for production, and the Senate also may take up a measure to extend federal price controls on so-called old domestic production.

In addition to energy legislation, the Senate will resume its debate on the still-disputed outcome of last November's New Hampshire Senate race between Democrat John A. Durkin and Republican Louis E. Wyman. On Tuesday, Senate Democrats will make a fourth attempt to halt floor debate, but the move is given poor chances for approval.

Even if the move succeeds, the issue still must go back to the Senate Rules Committee, which must settle questions on some 30 disputed ballots and report back.

In the House, a battle is shaping up between sponsors of competing versions of bills to open up naval oil reserves in Elk Hills, Calif., and elsewhere.

A bill sponsored by Reps. John Melcher, D-Mont., and Alphonzo Bell, R-Calif., would transfer jurisdiction of the naval reserves from the Navy to the Interior Department. It would allow the government to sell oil and gas reserves from Elk Hills on the open market if needed to help ease the nation's energy crisis.

The other proposal, backed by the House Armed Services Committee, also would authorize production of oil in the reserves but would keep it under Navy control. And it would specify that oil produced from Elk Hills and other naval fields could be sold only to the military.

kidnaped. The U.S. Embassy in Beirut confirmed it had been informed of the demand but refused to comment further.

Informed sources said the ransom note referred to Morgan as "this American spy" and demanded that the Embassy distribute food and construction material in the Maslakh district of Beirut, an area hard hit in the recently ended street fighting.

The Israeli cabinet had been expected at its meeting Sunday to decide whether to give in to U.S. pressure to return the Gidi and Mitla Passes in the Sinai Desert to Egypt. But after a report from the Israeli ambassador to the United States, Simha Dinitz, the cabinet announced it would "continue to seek elucidations and clarifications from the United States regarding the components of the agreement with Egypt."

Sources said that the main questions include just how far Egypt expects Israel to withdraw; whether the Egyptians agree to Tel Aviv's demand for an early warning system in the desert, and whether the United States will replace the oil Israel has been pumping from Egypt's Abu Rudeis oil fields if Israel returns them.

Stock list goes down

NEW YORK (AP) — Rising interest rates pushed stock prices lower again in quiet trading today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 5.79 at 866 even, and losers outstripped gainers by a 6-5 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the weekly data on money and credit conditions released by the Federal Reserve after Thursday's close tended to heighten expectations of a round of increases in the bank prime lending rate this week.

Occidental Petroleum was the most active issue on the Big Board, up 1/4 at 19 1/4. A 55,000-share block traded at 19 3/4.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .06 at 92.54.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks was down .17 at 50.28.

Circle K topped the Amex's most-active list, down 1/4 at 7.

$2 bill on the way?

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department may reintroduce the two-dollar bill by the end of this year, according to Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

In a letter to Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, D-N.Y., dated June 21 and released today by Rosenthal, Simon said a decision has not yet been made, but indicated it would be soon.

He said the Bureau of Engraving and Printing already is preparing preliminary designs for a two-dollar bill using bicentennial themes.

"If the project fares well, with the concurrence of the Congress and other members of the administration, I would hope that we could agree to introduce the issue at the end of this year with a well-coordinated program to assure the circulation goals," Simon wrote.

Rosenthal is chairman of the House subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary affairs, which already is on record favoring the two-dollar bill.

A major reason for reintroducing the bill would be to save on printing costs, since fewer bills will be required if the two-dollar bill successfully replaces as portion of the one-dollar bills now in circulation.

Burglar gets sporting spirit

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — An early-morning visitor to a athletic equipment store got into the sporting spirit early Sunday.

Police said an intruder smashed a rock through the front door of Brendamour's Sporting Goods in downtown Cincinnati. The intruder then removed a bowling ball from a display rack, rolled it into a gun rack, and proceeded to remove three pistols valued at $525.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Keep an eye out tonight for "Broken Treaty at Battle Mountain" on public TV. It's a highly engrossing, if largely one-sided, documentary about Nevada land, Indians and the government.
It weaves together two themes. One is the ancient culture and modern struggle for existence of Nevada's Western Shoshone Indians.
The other is the fight of a group of

Shoshone to keep the Nevada land — 24 million acres, or one-third of Nevada — the federal government says the Shoshone gave it in a treaty signed in 1863.

The one-hour show, filmed from late 1972 through 1973, is sparingly narrated by actor Robert Redford. It's followed by an unusually good panel discussion, hosted by Hugh Downs and taped this spring.

The documentary by Joel Freedman, a 32-year-old New Yorker, starts at a snail's pace, with glimpses of Shoshone life, talk of the old ways and increasing encroachment of white man's ways on the Shoshone.

It's a sad, oft-told story. But this version will hook you as it eases into the battle of Glen Holley Sr., head of a group of Shoshone "traditionalists" who deny the 1863 treaty gave away any land.

He's a proud, angry man. And it shows powerfully during a stormy Shoshone meeting when a federal official concedes the treaty was unfair but insists "by that treaty, you lost everything."

The official, referring to $26 million the federal Indian Claims Commission recently awarded the Shoshone for the land, says, "You are not selling the land. You are getting the value of the land at the time it was taken." Holley's group now is contesting the award.

While studying Holley's claims, the program doesn't point out very strongly that the award was won by another Shoshone faction which for years claimed the government took the land by gradual encroachment.

That group, whose spokesmen aren't interviewed, doesn't contest the taking. It just wants the money. Holley's faction, small but never defined in size by the show, wants no money, just the land.

The show ends on a depressing note — at least for Holley's forces. But in the 30-minute followup, Downs cites new developments.

He says after the Indian Claims Commission denied Holley's group the right to present its views prior to the $26 million judgement, the group this year went to federal court to appeal the award.

He says the appeal, filed by the Western Shoshone Legal Defense and Education Association which Holley heads, charges the rights of the "traditionalists" were "bargained away without proper representation."

One fact unmentioned in the documentary is that producer Freedman agreed to give the association at least 25 per cent of any profits — he says there've been none yet — from the film.

He says this "wasn't relevant to the film itself." He emphasized he didn't do the project to make money and doubted it'd make much anyway.

Trailer fire fatal to 3

The victims were identified as Lloyd Barnett, 53, and his two sons Skyler, 6, and Randolph, 3.
Authorities said Barnett's wife, Rita, escaped from the back door of mobile home and called for help, but was unable to re-enter the burning trailer. The bodies of her husband and sons were found inside the front door of the mobile home which had been locked. Darke County coroner Dr. William Elliott said the victims died of suffocation.

Opinion And Comment

Here's to Christina, Jorge

There is something remarkably satisfying about the news of Dutch Princess Christina's marriage to Jorge Guillermo, a Cuban-born resident of New York City. They plan to continue at their present New York jobs and live like "ordinary people."

This will be a refreshing departure from a pattern more common among the offspring of royal houses in a democratic era - a pattern of snobbery and unearned privilege and essential indolence. Guillermo will go on devoting his time to the Harlem school for socially deprived black children with which he has been associated since 1973; his royal wife will go on teaching French and music at a Montessori school. They will make a significant contribution to human well-being.

The Dutch royal family and the people of Holland seem pleased at this development, and have honored the young couple with receptions, concerts and the like. We are pleased, too, and offer our felicitations.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . By John P. Roche

A nuisance named Wallace

Governor George Wallace occupies a very curious position in American politics: he has no future in the Democratic Party, but if he runs an independent campaign, he may (as almost happened in 1968) hand the Democrats the White House. Some characters off on the right have what they consider a dreamboat ticket — Ronald Reagan and Wallace running on a conservative third line. I don't know what they are smoking in their pipes. All I can say is I devoutly hope for their development. The Democratic candidate in 1976 wouldn't even have to campaign.

In other words, while Wallace can't go anywhere, he can make life difficult for everybody else. Unquestionable he will turn up at the Democratic nominating convention with a substantial bloc of votes, but his nomination is inconceivable. Nor, for reasons we will come to shortly, would any Democrat in his right mind take him aboard as a Vice Presidential partner. However, he will be situated so as to make a brokered convention almost inevitable. Like the substantial number of "McGovernites" who will also be there at the other end of the political spectrum, the Wallaceites will have a veto power.

Wallace's specialty is tearing up Democratic primaries (at last count there will be — ugh — 33 next year!)

but what few analysts appreciate is that his power in primaries arises from essentially non-political factors. A vote for Wallace in, say, Michigan is a free way to vent one's aggressions against the world. The guy who is sore about busing, unemployment, taxes, or perhaps just annoyed with his wife pulls the Wallace lever, symbolically booting "the System" in the tail. He knows it's harmless and may get the Democratic Party to pay more attention to him.

The Presidential election, on the other hand, is for real and — assuming the Democratic left doesn't launch another kamikaze attack as in 1972 — the same Michigan voter will "come home." Thus within the Democratic Party George Wallace is more of a public nuisance than a serious political figure.

Outside of the Democratic Party, however, he is a genuine threat — to the Republicans. There was a lot of chatter about his appeal to "Populist" sentiments among the Democrats, but in 1968 it was estimated that he took 4 Republican votes for each Democratic one.

I have never been able to discern much radical "populism" in contemporary Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana and Mississippi, the states he carried in 1968. In contrast, my Texas friends tell me that he presented that state to Hubert Humphrey on a platter, and almost gave him California. Thus an independent Wallace candidacy must be a nightmare for President Ford's political strategist.

Yet, even here there is some consolation from the Harris Poll (6-16-75) which had a Wallace-Ford contest up front with Ford getting 60 per cent to Wallace's 31. More significant was a second finding that got little publicity, although its implications were fascinating.

We have heard a good deal of comment about the "new Wallace" who has given up his bad old racist ways. Well, Wallace may have thought he was on the road to Damascus, but Harris' findings indicate he is en route to the Dead Sea. A year ago only 37 per cent of those polled considered Wallace "an extremist." Now the percentage has risen to 53! Perhaps the electorate is merely catching up with the "old Wallace," but once a politician gets that tag, he is in real trouble.

Our central strategy, for instance, in the 1964 Presidential campaign was to get the public to perceive Barry Goldwater as "an extremist." If I wrote one speech to that effect, I wrote 20. And, with some cooperation from Barry (who denounced the T.V.A. in Tennessee, opposed medicare in Florida . . . we couldn't have done better if we programmed him ourselves) the label took.

When sometime in early Oct. 1974, Gallup reported that over 50 per cent of the voters considered Goldwater "a radical" (which is identical with "an extremist"), I wanted to close down campaign headquarters and take a vacation.

This should be some consolation to Mr. Ford because it indicated that the Wallace threat in 1976 is far less firmly based than it was in 1968. In short, there is no need for the Republicans to write off the five Wallace states — a strong conservative campaign might keep them with the GOP.

Nominations taken for hall of fame

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Nominations are being accepted by the Department of Natural Resources for the 1975 Ohio Conservation Hall of Fame and the Ohio Conservation Achievement Awards.

The hall of fame was established to recognize retired or deceased Ohioans for their contributions to conservation in the state.

The awards are given to individuals who have made a significant contribution to the protection or preservation of natural resources or natural environment.

Millions of motorists enjoy having special license tags for their cars. President Harry Truman's tag number was 5745, commemorating Germany's surrender in World War II on May 7, 1945.

Ohio Perspective

Moonshiners plague authorities

By TOM DIEMER

Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The stereotyped hill country moonshiner is mostly confined to the funny pages these days, but the manufacture of illicit rotgut whiskey is still a major concern to Ohio liquor authorities.

The state Department of Liquor Control seized 16 stills last year, along with 785 gallons of mash and 158 gallons of untaxed whiskey. Liquor agents arrested seven for moonshine activity.

Over the past 10 years, only about 300 stills have been raided by state and U.S. Treasury agents. Liberalized liquor laws and increased availability have driven many bootleggers out of business.

"There still is moonshine activity," said a spokesman for the liquor department, "but it is well-controlled."

In addition to the loss of tax revenue — $14 on a gallon of whiskey — the department is concerned with hazards to public health.

Liquor investigators see no romance in moonshining. They say a jug of white lightning can contain a lethal dose of lead salts.

"Unlike Snuffy Smith, the comic strip character, the real-life moonshiner is not humorous," said a department brochure. "The filthy conditions found in most still operations would turn even Snuffy's stomach."

Ohio is not really part of the moonshine belt. Most of the activity is in the Appalachian foothills of the southeastern part of the state, a department spokesman said.

The enforcement problem is complicated by illegal imports which supplement Ohio production. And, in place of the backwoods mountaineer, the industry is currently dominated "by a different breed, gangster-type businessmen," liquor authorities said.

State agents and Columbus police recently raided a still that was held together with lead fittings that could have poisoned the product. The home-made still consisted of a hot plate, a sealed cooker with a condenser unit and rubber tubing to run tap water through the condenser for cooling.

Police arrested a 48-year-old man and confiscated 10 gallons of mash and several bottles of moonshine. The bootleg whiskey apparently was for the suspect's own use, and not intended for the illicit market, authorities said.

Investigators also found a paperback guide at the site of the raid. It was entitled "How To Make Booze At Home."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

'Living will' a right to death

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old reader who wants to thank you for the best present I have ever received.

Because of an item in your column, I sent for The Living Will. Now I have peace of mind, knowing that if I should become terminally ill, those who love me will not have to watch me die by inches. (I went through 22 months of that. My mother died of cancer.)

Abby, you would be doing your readers a tremendous service by explaining The Living Will and telling them how to obtain one.

S.S. IN BOSTON

DEAR S.S. The Living Will is simply a document that reads as follows:

To my family, my physician, my lawyer, my clergyman.

To any medical facility in whose care I happen to be.

To any individual who may become responsible for my health, welfare, or affairs:

Death is as much a reality as birth, growth, maturity and old age—it is the one certainty of life. If the time comes when I can no longer take part in decisions for my own future, let this statement stand as an expression of my wishes while I am still of sound mind.

If the situation should arise in which there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial means or "heroic measures." I do not fear death itself as much as the indignities of deterioration, dependence and hopeless pain. I therefore ask that medication be mercifully administered to me to alleviate suffering even though this may hasten the moment of death.

This request is made after careful consideration. I hope you who care for me will feel morally bound to follow its responsibility upon you, but it is with the intention of relieving you of such responsibility and of placing it upon myself in accordance with my strong convictions that this statement is made.

Witness _____

Copies of this request have been given to _____

Thus far, over half a million Living Wills have been distributed. (Yes, I have signed one.)

Contrary to what many believe, "Euthanasia" does NOT mean "mercy killing"; it means "the good death." I am absolutely opposed to killing for any reason. However, should it be determined that there is positively no hope for my recovery, I believe that it is my right to be allowed to die with dignity.

It is not "against" anyone's religion. Pope Pius XII said in 1957: "The removal of pain and consciousness by means of drugs is permitted by religion and morality for both doctor and patient, even if the use of drugs shortens life."

A California reader offered to donate $1,000 to my favorite charity for acquainting him with The Living Will.

And one Texan wrote: "I want to fill out a Living Will because when Gabriel blows his horn, no S.O.B. is going to keep me from going."

The Living Will can be obtained by writing to The Euthanasia Educational Council, 250 West 57th Street, New York, New York 10019. It is a non-profit organization so with your request, please enclose a few dollars (tax deductible) to cover the cost of the documents and mailing.

Pot smokers reap bargains under new Indiana measure

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Marijuana smokers are reaping bargains from a new Indiana law intended to reduce the use of pot.

Sometime next month it will become a felony in Indiana to sell such paraphernalia as bongs, ice pipes, roach clips and other devices used in smoking marijuana and hashish or sniffing cocaine. It's believed to be the only law of its kind in the nation.

So-called head shops, where the paraphernalia is sold, are scrambling to clear their inventories, and in some cases customers are stocking up on supplies for the future.

One record store in downtown Indianapolis has large signs in its front window advertising the sale. "All paraphernalia must go," one sign declares. "Half Price. Last Chance," reads another.

A Muncie shop now conducting a half-price sale has found business falling off and plans a midnight sale before the law takes effect.

"This might be the best thing that's happened to us," said the manager of an Indianapolis store where business has surged. "We had a huge inventory, too much."

In Terre Haute, the biggest rush has been on cigarette papers, even though they will remain legal.

The head shops figure to break even with the sales, since markups on paraphernalia are about 50 per cent.

Nevertheless, the head shop industry has launched a campaign to fight the law in court.

The law could have minimal effect on pot users.

"I smoke out of a part of an aircraft landing gear that I made into a pipe when I was in the Air Force," one smoker said. Others use normal tobacco pipes, despite the fact they are less resistant to heat, and some improvise.

Old bridge to become walkway

YELLOW SPRINGS, Ohio (AP) — A covered bridge in southern Greene County will soon become a footbridge at Antioch College's Glen Helen nature preserve.

The 130-year-old covered bridge that once served automobile traffic is to be moved from Fork Stream, put aboard a flatbed truck and rebuilt in the preserve.

Glen Helen Director Ralph Ramey said the Glen Helen Association decided to save the structure from an Army Corps of Engineers reservoir project that will flood the area where it is now located.

The relocation will cost about $16,500, and the association has raised $1,000 toward that figure. Ramey said the cost is about three times what it required to build the bridge in the 1840s.

About $4,500 is required for raising telephone, power lines and traffic signals along the 29-mile route to its new location, Ramey said.

The bridge is one of six remaining covered bridges in Greene County.

SATURDAY, 2:30 p.m. — A tanker truck driven by Marion R. Baxla II, 22, Greenfield, struck a car driven by Betty A. Bowers, 60, Dayton, when Baxla attempted to pass the Bowers auto on Ohio 41-S in Perry Township.

11:30 a.m. — A pickup truck driven by Harry W. Fichthorn, 57, of 402 Gregg St., struck a five gallon oil can in the road which had fallen from an unidentified vehicle traveling in front of Fichthorn. Deputies stated the vehicle which had lost the can slowed to stop, but then continued on its way when Fichthorn exited his auto to check damage.

8:45 a.m. — A car belonging to Walter W. Carmen, 61, of 2875 Ohio 41-N, was struck at the intersection of Ohio 41-N and Prairie Road by a hit-skip driver.

MRS. DANIEL MORTON

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Morton now reside in Columbus

Baskets of pink gladioli and white carnations adorned the altar of South Side Church of Christ for the marriage of Miss Pamela Kay Elliott and Daniel Clayton Morton. The Rev. Charles Richmond performed the double ring ceremony June 14 for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Elliott of 1028 S. Main St., and the son of Mrs. Dorothy Morton of 902 Sycamore St. Mrs. Charles Richmond presented "Precious and Few" and "One Hand One Heart."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a sheer polyester dotted Swiss gown lined in taffeta with Florentine styled skirt, bishop sleeves and high neckline trimmed with Venice lace at the bibbed bodice. She also wore a chapel-length mantilla, and carried a cascade of pink roses, stephanotis with baby's breath.

Mrs. Debbie Jennings, the honor attendant, wore a blue and green floral gown with sheer nylon over taffeta trimmed with avocado satin ribbon at the bodice, and a wide-brimmed hat. The bridesmaids wore gowns identical to the honor attendant, except in pink with green. Their hats were trimmed with avocado satin bows with long ribbon streamers. They carried colonial bouquets of pink and blue daisies, baby's breath and white carnations.

The mother of the bride chose a pink polyester A-line gown with long sleeves and white accessories. Mrs. Morton chose a blue polyester straight-line dress and jacket ensemble with which she combined blue accessories. Both mothers had shoulder corsages of pink, and blue daisies, with baby's breath. The grandmothers and hostesses for the reception had corsages of white daisies trimmed with pink and blue ribbon.

Tim Hill of Columbus served as best man for his college roommate, Randy Creamer of Washington C.H., David Grubb of Columbus, and Mike Kreemer of Grove City, cousin of the groom, seated the wedding guests.

Hostesses for the reception were Sherry Kimmert and Minda Knisley with Vicki Clay presiding at the guest book.

The reception took place at the church in Fellowship Hall. The bride's table featured a three-tiered wedding cake encircled with pink carnations and leather leaf.

Mrs. Morton, the groom's mother, was hostess for the rehearsal dinner.

The new Mrs. Morton, a 1975 graduate of Washington Senior High School, is a former employee of Huntington Bank. Her husband, a 1972 graduate of WSHS, attended Ohio University, Athens, and is now employed by the State of Ohio, Department of Liquor Control, as computer operator.

The couple is now residing at 1055 Merrimac Circle, Columbus.

School aid dilemma faces Ohio solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — House Finance Committee members are in a dilemma over a Senate-approved school aid distribution formula, probably the biggest priority item remaining on this year's legislative calendar.

Formal hearings were suspended before the General Assembly began its holiday break June 27, and none is scheduled this week. The House returns Tuesday and the Senate Wednesday, hopeful of winding up major business by the end of the month.

Rep. Frederick N. Young, R-38 Dayton, the ranking Republican member of the Finance Committee, said informal discussions are being held on the controversial "equal yield" formula.

It would replace an embattled school foundation formula with a new system of equalizing state aid to primary and secondary education. The 1975-1977 budget contains about $460 million in "new money" for schools, up from the

$1.9 billion they received in the biennium ended June 30.

Young said the biggest controversy in the bill is a provision that could have the effect of ending the state's property tax rollback in 1977. Lawmakers of both parties have been bombarded with letters of protest since the Senate approved the measure May 14 by a vote of 26-6.

Other points of contention, as far as he was concerned, the Dayton lawmaker said, involve language "insisted on" by lobbyists for the 83,000-member Ohio Education Association.

One requires schools to close when less than a third of the students and teachers are present, or face the loss of state aid. Young said the provision is designed to enhance the effectiveness of strikes that may be authorized by another pending bill.

The same applies, he said, to a requirement for schools to have a pupil-teacher ratio of 25-1 "per building," instead of per classroom. He said it would mean there would have to be a teacher for each 25 members of a school band, an athletic team, and other activities that do not fit classroom situations.

"All that's got to come out of the bill," Young said. "It's all tacked on language that shouldn't be included. What we want is a pure reform bill."

John Hall, chief lobbyist for the OEA, was on vacation and unavailable for comment, his office said.

Otherwise, Democrats in the legislature will huddle this week to decide if they should try to override at least some of the 72 items vetoed by GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes in the state's new two-year appropriations bill.

A Senate subcommittee is expected to meet today to begin considering amendments to a House-passed bill aimed at solving the state's medical malpractice problem. The subcommittee heard testimony intermittently during the legislature's July 4 holiday.

In other business, legislative leaders are calling for continued hearings on other major bills including drug abuse, rape law revision, collective bargaining, and probate court reform.

Recommended for passage by a House committee and awaiting a floor vote is another major bill that provides for no fault automobile insurance in Ohio.

Formal introduction is expected in the House Tuesday of Rhodes' bill to reappropriate $344 million he vetoed out of the budget. It was placed by Democrats in the Controlling Board instead of designated to state agencies.

The funds include $258 million for welfare subsidies, $56 million for a state employee pay raise, $15 million for mental retardation programs, $10 million for a special University of Cincinnati subsidy, and two so-called "lay off" prevention funds—$3 million for the natural resources department and $2 million for the taxation department.

Young GOP ends meet

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Young Republicans Federation wound up its 1975 convention Sunday, leaving a pot of seething controversies slightly stirred by the delegates. The strongest resolution issued by the convention was a resolution blaming President Ford, as well as the Democrat-controlled Congress, for the nation's economic mess.

The conference heard from a host of Republican leaders who called for party unity. Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan took pains to avoid becoming embroiled in any behind-the-scenes convention controversy.

A number of delegates had hoped to force the endorsement of a GOP presidential candidate for next year's election, a battle between Reagan and

Ford forces was sidestepped when the delegates agreed to call for an open convention next year.

Some delegates said they were miffed because President Ford did not attend, even though he made brief visits to nearby Cincinnati and Cleveland.

Cash distributed to school districts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some $181,270 has been distributed to 30 Ohio school districts in depository interest, royalties and proceeds from the rent and sale of school and ministerial lands, the state auditor's office said today.

CAUGHT NAPPING — Post 25 hurler Randy Gardner caught a Chillicothe Post 62 runner leaning the wrong way Saturday in helping himself to a 6-2 win. Gardner picked two Post 62 runners off base. In this last pick off peg the Chillicothe runner thought he beat the throw and he got to sit on the bench sooner than he planned after the umpire ejected him from the contest.

WCH linkster earns All-American honors

ASHLAND — Ashland College's banner year in golf, which included a fourth-place finish in the NCAA Division III National Tournament, had even more to celebrate recently when Rob Herron of Washington C.H. and Kim Mansfield of Mansfield were named to the All-American team.

Herron tied for 19th place in the medalist race of the national championships. The junior, a former Blue Lion linkster, shot 74-81-76-231 to improve on his season average of 77.6 strokes coming into the nationals. He was selected as an honorable mention All-American.

Mansfield, a senior, averaged 77.0 strokes during the regular season and then shot 77-78-78-235 in the nationals at Ft. Campbell, Ky. He played with the Ashland golf teams that captured 13th and 12th the previous two seasons in the nationals.

Though he didn't win All-American honors, Ashland's top shooter in the tournament was junior Jack Renlesham of Lyndhurst with 80-74-74-228. He pulled off a surprising performance considering he averaged just over 80 strokes during the regular season.

Ashland Golf Coach Gary Praht said, "We are certainly honored to have two All-Americans and finish so high in the nationals. Mansfield has had an outstanding career and has been a key man on three of our high national-finish teams."

"Herron enjoyed his finest collegiate season and he will have to be a mainstay on our team next year as three of our five men return," the coach concluded.

Herron showed his All-American form last week at the Washington Country Club when he fired a 69 and came back with a 67 the next day. He hopes to gun for his third club title later this summer.

Gardner, defense spell victory for Legion nine

CHILLICOTHE — Post 25's Randy Gardner can thank the defensive performances of both his teammates and the opposition as the Court House rightlander registered a 6-2 victory over Chillicothe Post 62 Saturday.

Rightfielder Terry Rodgers pegged a Post 62 runner at the plate and the Washington infielder backed up Gardner by turning a bases-loaded double play while the Chillicothe nine committed four errors allowing three unearned runs.

Gardner gave up six hits, walked seven and struck out only two in the seven inning affair, but he helped himself out by picking off two runners as Post 62 stranded nine men on the basepaths.

Post 25 batsmen got six hits too, but three errors cost the Chillicotheans three runs to pad the winning margin.

Court House got on the scoreboard first in the fourth frame as Phil Roll and Jeff DeWeese walked and Terry Rodgers brought them home with the help of an error by the Post 62 left-fielder.

Rodgers singled sharpely to left and the ball rolled through the outfielders legs allowing Roll and DeWeese to score without a play.

Alan Conner singled home Rodgers one out later to make the score 3-0.

Post 25 added two more in the fifth when Randy Sparkman walked went to second on a ground out and scored on Roll's double into the left-centerfield gap.

Roll scored on a throwing error by the Chillicothe catcher to put the

Country Club holds Holiday tournaments

The team of Ronald Cornwell, Dan Huffman, John Arbogast, Dave Boswell and Dave Ellis won the July 4th Five-Man Team Best Ball tourney at the Washington Country Club.

The winners finished with a 28-under par 116 to win the event by three strokes over the team of Jim Polk, Glen Helmick Jr., Irvin Reeves, Ralph Douglas and Robert Anderson.

The two best-ball scores per hole were used to decide the team score as Robert Hagerty, Jim Wightman, Wilson Moon, Ralph Cook and Stephen Willis finished four strokes off the pace with a 120 and the team of Allen Willoughby, Jack Marti, S.E. Vaughn, Paul Grim and Bill Sloughton finished with a 121.

Willoughby posted the best individual score on the day with a 72 in the 18-team tourney.

In the Mixed Scotch Twosome event, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Willoughby won the Class A division with a 41.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Helmick and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sanderson tied for the low net score in the A's division while Mr. and Mrs. Gene Heath and Mr. and Mrs. Birch Rice tied for the low putt contest with 15.

In the Class B field, Bucky Dumford and Mrs. Jim Kirk took the top spot with a 45 and Mr. and Mrs. Loren Noble had the low net score of 35. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hyer and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Moon tied for the low number of putts with 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Parrett shot a 51 to take honors in the Class C division while Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kellough took net score honors with a 36. Three couples tied for the 'C' division lowest number of putts with 16. They were Mr. and Mrs. Roland Holthouse, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wade and Mr. and Mrs. Milbourne Flee.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Heer won the "Blind Bogey" award.

Washington Legionnaires up by five runs.

A throwing error by pitcher Jeff Kuhner, who relieved the starter Scott Whrig in the fifth, accounted for Post 25's final run.

Chillicothe threatened in the second frame until Kevin Skaggs hit into a picture-perfect double play from Sparkman to Scherer to Zurface with the bases loaded.

Post 62 threatened again in the third to put the first tallies on the board as

Ruffian destroyed after race injury

NEW YORK (AP) — Ruffian was humanely destroyed early today, the victim of a shattered right ankle that ended her sensational racing career just one-half mile after the start of The Great Match Race against Foolish Pleasure.

"Don't let her suffer any more," owner Stuart Janney told veterinarians and trainer Frank White after the coal black filly had dislodged a cast and protective brace on her right leg.

The decision to end the life of the winner of her first 10 races came at about 2 a.m., EDT, a spokesman for the New York Racing Association said, and followed by 2½ hours an operation on the shattered sesamoids in her right leg.

The daughter of Reviewer broke down Sunday at Belmont Park with about three quarters of a mile to go while she had a half-length lead in her $350,000 11-4 mile match against the Kentucky Derby winner.

Jacinto Vasquez immediately pulled Ruffian up and dismounted. The leg

Randy Quisenberry tried to score from second base on a sharp single to rightfield. Rodgers fielded the ball and threw a perfect strike to DeWeese at the plate nailing the Post 62 runner.

Gardner picked a runners off second base and first to kill rallies as Post 25 went on to post the 6-2 win of a make-up game rained out earlier in the season.

Post 25 takes the field next on Wednesday against Chillicothe Post 757 at the Washington Senior High diamond for a single game.

was put into a plastic cast and Ruffian was removed by a horse ambulance at 7:45 p.m., an hour and 35 minutes after the race.

Ruffian underwent surgery that was to last almost four hours. But the winner of New York's Triple Crown for Fillies could not be saved.

"She was running very well," Vasquez said. "She changed her lead and I could feel something happening. It was her right leg."

While Vasquez pulled Ruffian up, Foolish Pleasure continued to the finish line to win the $225,000 first prize.

"I am so sorry to see such a fine filly get hurt," said Braulio Baeza, who got the mount on Foolish Pleasure when Vasquez, the regular rider for both 3-year-olds, chose to ride the previously unbeaten Ruffian.

"It's a shame. I saw going down the backstretch that he (Vasquez) was working to try and get away, but my colt stayed with them. Then I saw it happen. I could hear it crack."

Reds swamp Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — When San Diego's Hawaii farm club acquired Hector Torres from the Chicago White Sox last year, the veteran infielder had a .197 lifetime batting average for six seasons in the majors and little hope of returning.

Today, the 29-year-old, sixfoot, 175-pounder is averaging .305 with the San Diego Padres and represents perhaps their No. 1 surprise of 1975.

"Being here has changed my philosophy about baseball," Torres said Sunday after he collected half of San Diego's six hits in Cincinnati's third straight victory over the Padres, 13-2.

When Torres was with Houston, the Cubs and Montreal, he worried less about not playing regularly than he did about the fear that he would be sent to the minors.

"I never expected to be here this season, so I decided to relax and everything that has happened has been a bonus," he said Sunday.

Torres had a sore arm when the White Sox sold him last year to Hawaii. Though he was a non-roster player, the Padres invited him to spring training last March and, sound physically, he quickly established himself as the finest utility infielder the Padres have had in their seven seasons.

Sunday's game was Cincinnati's third straight victory over the Padres and the Reds closed the series with a 3-1 edge despite Torres' efforts. The Reds mounted a 6-0 lead in the first inning and a half against starter and loser Joe McIntosh, 6-7, Dave Freisleben and Rich Folkers.

The Padres stranded 12 runners, 10 of them in the first five innings against starter Clay Kirby, 6-3, who gained his fifth victory in a row, thanks to four shutout innings of relief by Pedro Borbon.

Torres doubled to set up Randy Hundley's run-scoring single in the second inning and singled in the third to drive in Willie McCovey, who had doubled.

Joe Morgan, George Foster and Darrel Chaney each drove in two runs for the Reds, who benefitted from two hits apiece from Morgan and Pete Rose.

The win gives the Reds an eight-game edge over the Los Angeles Dodgers, who concluded their best homestand in more than two months Sunday with a 5-1 victory over San Francisco.

Anderson believer in July 4th tale

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sparky Anderson is a new believer in the old tale that the first-place team in each of baseball's major leagues on July 4 will go on to win the pennant.

"I believe," attested Anderson, whose Reds had opened up an eight-game lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers by Independence Day. It is a change of heart for the 41-year-old manager, and understandably so.

Two years ago the Reds were locked in second place in the National League's Western Division and the Dodgers were nearly out of sight. Last year, in the same position, Anderson still didn't believe. But now with the Reds well in front of the defending league champs, the silver-haired skipper believes.

The Reds flaunted superstition in 1973 as they staged a miraculous comeback to catch Los Angeles, only to lose in the playoffs. Last season the miracle fell four games short and the Reds watched post season play on television.

Will lightning strike again in reverse? Anderson doubts it, but Dodger outfielder Jimmy Wynn disagrees.

"Forget about tradition," Wynn remarked after a 1-0 July 4 loss to San Francisco. "We're only eight out. With three months to go, anything can happen. I'll be leaving World Series tickets for my ex roomie, Joe Morgan."

"Hell," retorted a smiling Morgan when informed of Wynn's quote, "he didn't leave me any last year."

"It drains you to have to play from behind," said Anderson, who speaks from experience. "That's what happened to us last year. We got even, but we were too beat to go past them. We just couldn't go any further."

Additional evidence of the Reds' bright outlook—bright enough to make oddsmaker Jimmy the Greek install the Reds as 1-5 favorites to take the division title—is the fact that they traditionally have been slow starters, while Los Angeles is usually a first-half ballclub.

"The weather gives them a tremendous edge," Anderson said. "No doubleheaders, no off days and more home games early because of the weather. That helps the Dodgers."

Meanwhile, the slow-starting Reds are playing well over .600 ball, traditionally slow-starting pitcher Jack Billingham is 10-3, and all of a sudden the Dodgers find themselves as the team looking up from second place.

"They're doing a lot of talking," Anderson said of Los Angeles. What he didn't have to say is that all the Reds are doing is winning.

Surgery Can Correct Aneurysm

What is an aneurysm of a blood vessel? Is it unusual for this to happen to a young person of 30 who has never been ill?

Miss E. L., Mo.

Dear Miss L.:

All blood vessels are lined with thin muscles. These expand and contract as blood is pumped through them. Occasionally, a weakened spot in the muscle produces a bubble, or aneurysm, on the outside of the blood vessel.

This resembles a large blister that sometimes appears on the inner tube of an automobile tire at the point where the rubber has become worn or weakened.

Aneurysms can be the result of disease, of injury or of a birth defect. Rupture of an aneurysm is, of course, a dangerous condition. Control of the bleeding is urgent and can be accomplished when the condition is recognized immediately. The seriousness of the problem depends, too, on the location of the aneurysm and the size of the blood vessel that is involved.

An aneurysm in a young person who has not been in ill health is probably due to some congenital malformation.

Special surgical techniques can remove the diseased portion of an artery to prevent the imminent threat of a hemorrhage.

Dacron and other synthetic sleeves are used to replace arteries with aneurysms. The advances of this type of surgery have been enormous in the past 20 years.

My doctor performs a rectal examination each year. Does this mean he is suspicious of a cancer?

Mr. P. J. G., Nev.

Dear Mr. G.:

No general examination is really complete without a rectal examination. The only way to recognize an early growth is by performing this simple procedure.

The fact that your physician does this in no way indicates that a tumor or cancer is present. It satisfies him to know that there is no evidence of disease in this hidden area.

Your physician is wise and careful about the completeness of his general examination.

Opening lead - four of clubs.

The advantages and disadvantages of psychics have been argued among top players for many years, without a unanimous conclusion. But right or wrong, like it or not, the psychic does add spice to the game, as demonstrated by this deal from a match many years ago between Italy and the United States.

West (Sidney Silodor, playing with George Rapee) opened the bidding with a diamond. He knew he lacked the values for a proper opening bid, but he hoped to talk his esteemed opponents (Avarelli and Belladonna) out of their best contract.

The famous Italian pair got to three notrump on the bidding shown and made six for a score of 690 points.

At the second table, where John Crawford was North and this writer was South for the U.S. team, the bidding went:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥
Pass	3 ♥	Pass	4 NT
Pass	5 ♦	Pass	6 ♥

There is considerable doubt about the best contract on the combined North-South cards, but luckily I made the slam with an overtrick for a score of 1,460 points.

West could have stopped the slam had he led a spade, the suit North had opened the bidding with. But, reasonably enough, he led a diamond, and making the slam was now as easy as pie. I won the diamond with the jack, cashed three rounds of clubs, discarding two spades, and played a low heart. When the king appeared, I made all the tricks.

The U.S. gained 770 points on the deal, but whether it was earned income or a capital gain is left to the tender judgment of my readers.

More guardsmen take stand

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The sixth of eight Ohio National Guardsmen indicted on criminal charges in the 1970 Kent State University shootings was to take the stand today in the civil trial arising out of the incident.

Top on the list of upcoming witnesses was James D. McGee, a mustachioed carpenter from Ravenna.

The shooting victims and their families, who are suing for $46 million in damages, already have called Mathew McManus, James Pierce, Barry Morris, William Perkins and Lawrence Shafer.

Still on the witness list with McGee are Leon Smith and Ralph Zoller.

Last fall, a federal judge ordered that charges against the eight be dropped. The judge ruled that the government had failed to prove that they maliciously had violated the civil rights of the victims.

As the trial entered its eighth week, the plaintiffs also were expected sometime in the future to call Gov. James Rhodes, former Adj. Gen. Sylveste Del vcorso, ex-Brig. Gen. Robert Canterbury and Col. Charles Fassinger.

Rhodes ordered the troops to Kent during a weekend of rioting sparked by the U.S. military incursion into Cambodia. On the following Monday, a 13-second volley of guard gunfire left four students dead and nine wounded.

One of the plaintiffs' lawyers said it would be about three weeks before they rested their case.

Time has begun to weigh on the minds of lawyers for both sides as well as U.S. District Court Judge Don Young.

"I've been wondering how I'm going to discuss some of the witnesses in final arguments," said one of the lawyers defending the guardsmen. "Am I going to say to the jury, 'Remember that round-faced young fellow who said ...?' 'It's something you always worry about with a jury, whether they feel you're taking up their time, and not getting anywhere," he said.

"It's a factor," agreed a young attorney for the victims and their families.

Young has not approached either side about stepping up its pace but has started objecting to repetitive questions and testimony even before lawyers can get to their feet.

An apparently unspoken agreement has developed, allowing leading questions to be asked on direct examination to save time. The questions are allowed only in areas where the ground has been covered thoroughly and where the facts have not been contested.

"After all, it's been seven weeks," the plaintiffs' attorney said.

"We'll allow it as long as the other side doesn't mistate the evidence," the defense lawyer added.

He said the defense has been presenting its case in cross examination, with immediate rebuttal of testimony from witnesses called by the victims.

The deaths included two pedestrians and one motorcyclist, and there was one double-fatality accident.

Body found in reservoir

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Authorities in three counties today attempted to identify a badly decomposed body found Saturday in Hoover Reservoir, part of the City of Columbus water system.

The body, wrapped in flowered bed sheets and weighted by two truck tire rims was pulled from the reservoir in Delaware County north of here by two Columbus Marine and Park Patrol officers.

The Delaware County sheriff's office said an autopsy at the Hamilton County Morgue in Cincinnati failed to disclose cause of death but revealed that the body was that of a white woman in her early 30s. They said it had been in the reservoir for six months to a year.

The body was discovered during a patrol by the Columbus Marine and Park Police.

Warm weather brought the body to the surface, Sgt. William Lavery said.

He said it had been mired in mud under about six feet of water in a cove 150 yards from shore.
